Third Race for Rainbow
Children's Hands
Letters to Candidates
Starting for China

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

The American yacht Rainbow won again yesterday, giving her three races against two for the British yacht. One more race for Rainbow and the cup stays here. If you are excited about yacht racing, that will excite you. As a matter of fact, a modern sailing yacht race is less important than another race that never happened, that between the hare and the tortoise. The imaginary hare and tortoise race had a moral. The yacht race has none, unless it be that possessors of money and vanity find queer ways to spend one and gratify the other.

The American cup defender Rainbow sailed a good race, leading the English boat all the way, despite the loss of her spinnaker, made good by the sailors' swift handling of sails.

Tens of thousands of business men, millions of fathers and mothers, will be interested in Henry Ford's advice "to teach children to use their hands as well as their heads and thus equip them for useful, happy lives." The advice is printed at length in an article entitled "The Making of An American Citizen," written by Mr. Ford himself for GOOD HOUSEKEEPING MAGAZINE for October.

In the schools that he has established at Dearborn and elsewhere, Henry Ford has more than two thousand boys and girls, "learning to do by doing." The brain means nothing until it expresses itself in real creative work. Children not taught the actual use of their hands go through life handicapped.

Children should learn to play some musical instrument, not merely listen forever to "canned music," or music through the air. They should learn to use tools, to understand machinery, electricity, and actually to manipulate substances and create tangible objects.

Henry Ford does not mean that a child should merely be taught how OTHERS do it. He should be taught to do it himself with his own hands. Teachers and parents should realize that to use the hands trains the brain.

Mr. Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, is reported to have written all congressional candidates concerning their attitude in regard to labor union matters.

The question meant, of course:

"Are you in favor of letting union labor decide what it shall be paid and under what conditions it shall work? Do you believe that the workers should control the employers?"

The unwritten part would read:

"If not, do not expect to be elected."

Mr. Green works for organized labor, with great ability and sincerity. BUT what would Mr. Green say if some one representing employers and organized capital had written to every congressman asking:

"Do you believe that employers should fix wages and hours and control labor? If not, we are against you and you need not expect to be elected."

Intelligent labor men should know that it would be dangerous if the plan to organize all labor were successful. To do that would be to establish another government of the United States, a super-government of organized labor and organized voters to run the nation. That would not be good for the country, and it would be bad indeed for labor leaders. They would lose their positions and their influence and emoluments. It would be necessary for the government to run the unions, collect dues and manage industry. As in politics, so in labor, two parties are needed for sound health.

Two boys of the Jersey City Lincoln high school made up their minds to see the world and, greatly to their credit, started straight for China.

At Delaware Water Gap they discovered that they were homesick, and now, two days later, they are back in the Lincoln high school.

Homesickness has gradually

RAINBOW WINS CUP: RACE PROTESTED

JAFSIE ADDRESS FOUND IN HAUPTMANN'S HOME

W. R. Hearst's Views On European Peace And U. S. Recovery

LONDON

What do you think of the European situation in general?

MR. HEARST—It seems to me that the general financial situation among European nations is extremely bad, with the single exception of England.

I really have to give the English government and the English people tremendous credit for an amazing recovery.

The government devised soundly and sanely and without partisan politics the present plan of recovery.

The ablest business minds of the nation aided in the conception and execution of the plan and the people with characteristic British good judgment and good order supported the plan and made its success possible.

Furthermore, the result was accomplished without any sacrifice of liberty and democracy, without essaying any visionary innovations, any speculative experiments.

Great Britain had faith in its government, in its people, in its political system, in itself.

The result has justified that faith. Great Britain is much further on the road to recovery today than any nation in Europe, much further along than the United States, where unwise innovation and experimentation has harmed and hampered the present welfare of the people and mortgaged the future.

What is the chance of war in the next 10 years?

MR. HEARST—As far as war is concerned, I think all European nations are criminally insane. They think of nothing but mutual murder.

There are apparently only two conditions in Europe. One is a state of war and the other is a state of preparation for the next war.

Premier Okada of Japan recently said that war was the suicide of civilization, but all European nations are victims of this suicidal mania.

PENDER BARES MORRO PLOT

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—Arthur J. Pender, of Clinton, Mass., night watchman on duty aboard the liner Morro Castle at the time it burned at sea with a loss of 132 lives, told the federal board investigating the disaster today that he thought the ship was bombed.

He told of an explosion "loud" and "intense" that came either from the writing-room or the passageway forward of the lobby and declared that "in the light of everything that happened, I think the ship was bombed."

Pender, who said that he was the one who discovered a fire in the hold of the Morro Castle on a previous trip, testified that he understood that "the first officer suspected George Alagna (first assistant radio operator) of setting the fire in the hold on the previous trip.

Captain Willmott, Pender added, had taken him into his confidence and told him he intended to get rid of Alagna.

Pender also told the inquiry board of an alleged plot to "smuggle" aliens into the United States. The plot was discovered in a Havana poolroom by his watch partner, Pender said, and they intended waiting until they found out the identity of the smuggling ring before they told of it so they could gain promotion.

Earlier Pender testified that when he first went to the lobby he saw "a young man in a gray suit" who seemed to be "terror-stricken." Pender said that he had never seen the man before and that he knew he was not a member of the crew.

GRAND JURY SHOWN RANSOM MONEY

New York, Sept. 25—Outstanding developments today in the Lindbergh kidnaping case were:

1—The Bronx grand jury resumed its probe into the extortion charge against Bruno Hauptmann, calling Colonel Henry Breckenridge, Lindbergh's attorney and handwriting experts.

2—Discovery of two mysterious card-board boxes in the Hauptmann home. The boxes are to be investigated by police today.

3—Letter threatening harm to the 10-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Hauptmann as revenge for the Lindbergh kidnaping have been received at the Hauptmann home.

4—Colonel Lindbergh, who is flying east with his wife, will be asked to view a picture of Isidore Fisch to see if his appearance resembles that of a masked man Lindbergh saw the night the $50,000 ransom money was paid by Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon.

6—Statement by Henry Uhlig, lifelong friend of Isidore Fisch, in which he asserts he was present when Hauptmann went through Fisch's effects and that no money was found in them.

7—Department of Justice disclosed there is a similarity between footprint of Bruno Richard Hauptmann and that found near Lindbergh home the night of the kidnaping.

By International News Service

New York, Sept. 25—A second arrest in the Lindbergh case, presumably of an alleged accomplice of Bruno Hauptmann, is expected within 24 hours, the New York Evening Journal stated today.

The Journal's informant said that the suspect's name has not yet appeared in recent developments in the case. The newspaper said this would indicate that the second person to be arrested may be the man whom Colonel Lindbergh is said to have seen drop a handkerchief as a signal to the man who received the $50,000 ransom money from Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, that the coast was clear.

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 25—District Attorney Samuel J. Foley said today he had evidence showing that Dr. John Condon's address and telephone number at the time of the Lindbergh extortion was written on the wall of a closet in Bruno Richard Hauptmann's home.

Foley said the address and telephone number had been partially smudged and obliterated but that they could read "2974 Decatur avenue," and "Sedgwick 3-7154," respectively, the street address and telephone number of the "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh case at the time that he paid the $50,000 to "John."

"The case has been completely broken," Foley

HAUPTMANN'S STORY OF FISCH'S CASH BLASTED BY GERMAN

FRIEND SAW SUITCASES, DENIES TALE OF SUSPECT

Copyright 1934 by International News Service

New York, Sept. 25—The dark shadow of suspicion cast by Bruno Richard Hauptmann upon the memory of a dead man was erased today.

An investigation undertaken by International News Service and the New York Evening Journal reveals that Isidor Fisch, the man from whom Hauptmann claims to have received $18,750 of the Lindbergh ransom money found in Hauptmann's garage, had absolutely no connection with the kidnaping or ransom.

Isidore Fisch, in his grave in Leipzig, Germany, since last April, never even met Hauptmann until five months after the kidnaping.

And Hauptmann's defense, the story he has rigidly stuck to since his arrest, was blasted today. Hauptmann has steadfastly maintained that he first saw the money "two or three months ago" when, noticing that rain was soaking them, he opened the bags Fisch had left with him and found the bank notes.

BAGS OPENED BEFORE

From the lips of Fisch's boyhood and life-long friend, Henry Uhlig, it was learned that early in May of this year Hauptmann opened these self-same bags and suitcases with Uhlig by his side and found no money.

It was from Uhlig, who accompanied Fisch on that last fateful trip to Germany and who was with him constantly up to the day of his death, that the true story of Fisch's entire life and his business dealings with Hauptmann was learned.

The tale of Fisch and Uhlig is a veritable saga of Damon and Pythias.

As boy apprentices in the furriers' trade in Leipzig, they became acquainted. Often they spoke of bettering their chances in the new world.

UHLIG ARRIVES FIRST

Uhlig was the first to get the chance. He arrived in New York September 18, 1925. Isador Fisch landed two months later.

When Fisch died his relatives asked Uhlig to take a paper which they signed giving him power to act for them. They asked Uhlig to investigate Fisch's affairs in this country and see what he could find out.

Meanwhile, Fisch's brother had written a letter to Hauptmann, telling him of Fisch's death and asking him about details of their business connection.

CALLS ON HAUPTMANN

Uhlig landed here May 3 and was met at the pier by Hauptmann. Hauptmann invited Uhlig to come up to his house and look over the things Fisch had left there.

"I got up there in the afternoon and Mrs. Hauptmann said Richard was still down at the 'market,'" Uhlig continued. "He got home about 2:30, and after we had coffee and cake he hauled two big boxes he said Fisch had left.

"They contained 400 Hudson seal skins. They looked like a medium grade worth about $1 to $1.20 each. Then Hauptmann showed me the books he kept on his and Fisch's business. It showed that the skins were part of an original lot of 2000. Hauptmann was carrying the skins as worth $4.50 each.

TOLD OF PURCHASE

"I knew that was crazy and asked about it. He said that it is what Fisch told him they were worth. He showed me on the books where he had listed the sale of the other 1600 at $6 each. That would be nearly $10,000. I asked Hauptmann what had become of that money and he said Fisch told him he had used it to buy more furs, which were in storage in warehouses down town.

"Hauptmann said he didn't know where they were, but that he had a memorandum of the kind and number and he wanted me to help him find where they were. He wrote out a copy of this memorandum for me, but we never did locate the furs.

"Then Hauptmann took me to the garage and we spread an old comforter on the floor. We opened the two suitcases Fisch had left. In one was Isidor's tuxedo and some stiff shirts and some underwear. The other had only some fur scarfs left from cutting jobs Isidor and I had done on the side.

SUITCASES UNLOCKED

"That was all. There was no money. The suitcases showed no signs of ever having been wet. They were unlocked, though.

"On September 14 I went back because Hauptmann had asked me to look over the Hudson seal-skins again to pick out about 50 to make his wife a coat. He said he might as well get what he could out of them.

"I went up there and picked out the skins and we made plans to go hunting up in Maine with Haenkel and another friend. We were going to leave October 28. Hauptmann had told me what good hunting he had up there when he went two years ago.

"It was the last time I saw him. In fact, I was looking around for some sheepskins to make sleeping boots for us the day Hauptmann was picked up and I learned about his arrest."

LEIPZIG AIDS IN LINDY PROBE

By International News Service

Leipzig, Sept. 25—German and American authorities today plunged together into the task of investigating every conceivable German angle to the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

Ralph C. Busser, American consul at Leipzig, received a code message from Washington, which presumably relates to the widespread ramifications of the crime in this country.

Saxony police advised the American consul of their readiness to co-operate in every way with Arthur Johnson, the American detective who is on his way here from Madrid. This offer was volunteered although the police had received no request for assistance from American officials.

Letters Threaten Hauptmann Baby as Father Coolly Meets Tests in Court

DEFIANT — THOUGHTFUL — INTERESTED

Candid camera glimpses are shown of Bruno Richard Hauptmann as the suspect was arraigned in Bronx county court in connection with the finding of $13,500 of the Lindbergh ransom money on his property. Cool but worried alertness is revealed by Hauptmann as he hears the charge of the law. (Pictures from International News Photograph Service.)

Authorities now fear that vengeance for the Lindbergh kidnap-murder may be visited on the innocent head of little Manfred Hauptmann, 10-month-old son of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the crime suspect. Threats have been made against the Hauptmann baby's safety, it was learned today. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

Letters Threaten Harm to Hauptmann Baby

By Associated Press

So 10-month-old Manfred and his mother are staying with the latter's cousin, Hans Mueller.

They saw Hauptmann yesterday for the first time since his arrest. Mrs. Hauptmann rushed to him with a glad cry, thrust into his free arm the baby, and stooped to kiss the manacled hand.

Proudly the father mounted the child on his knee, talked to him in German and clucked his tongue while the baby gurgled.

Anna was weeping, but she did not let Manfred see that.

Home again, she told her faith in her husband.

Her Richard was "the last man in the world, yet," who would do such a thing as kidnap a baby.

She explained Richard's field glasses as her gift, his troublesome leg as a reminder of "the old country."

Then she opened a letter left by the postman. It was signed "an American" and said, "Tell nothing but the truth, even if they kill you."

Anna burst into tears.

"The truth!" she cried. "The truth! That's all we've been telling, and they won't believe us."

LINDY LANDS IN CINCINNATI

By Associated Press

Cincinnati, Sept. 25—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife, flying east, dropped in a small isolated airport here today, refuled their ship, and sped off in a few minutes in the direction of Columbus.

The flier and his wife swooped down on the E. M. S. flying service field in Blue Ash, O., beyond the city limits, at 12:30 a. m. (Boston time), field attendants reported.

They paused only to refuel and talked only of flying conditions during their short stay.

St. Louis, Sept. 25—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, en route East to aid authorities in their investigation of the kidnaping and slaying of their son, resumed their flight early today after spending the night in a hotel near Bagnell Dam in central Missouri.

They left the airport at Lakeside, Mo., at 8 a. m., Central Standard Time, presumably for St. Louis, but more than three hours later they had not landed here and it was believed they again would select some isolated field for their next refueling stop.

said. "When I said before that it was ironclad that was true. But today there was brought down here by Inspector Bruckman of the Bronx from the home of the defendant a board from inside a closet with handwriting partially smudged and obliterated with Condon's address and phone number on it."

The board was shown to Hauptmann, Foley said, and he admitted that he wrote the address and telephone number because, he explained, he was interested in the case.

On the back of another board in the closet, which was arranged so that it could be removed without interfering with the nail heads, was written the number of several bills believed to be a part of the ransom money, Foley said.

One of the numbers has been definitely established to be that of one of the bills paid out by Colonel Lindbergh, Foley said. The others are now being checked, he added.

Grand Jury Sees Ransom Money, Wood Used in Ladder

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 25—A Bronx County grand jury hearing evidence in the extortion case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, alleged receiver of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom money, was in a three and a half-hour session today and adjourned until tomorrow.

At the conclusion of today's session, District Attorney Samuel J. Foley said the list of witnesses to appear before the body was by no means exhausted. He reiterated a statement made yesterday that he did not expect to call Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh as a witness before the jury.

Evidence presented to the grand jury today included the $13,750 ransom money found in Hauptmann's garage, a can containing the money and a piece of lumber, 2 by 4 inches by 10 feet, from the Bronx lumber yard to which was traced the lumber used for the ladder found resting against the Lindbergh home after the kidnaping.

The lumber was taken into the grand jury room by Henry Bruckman, chief of Bronx detectives.

ATTORNEY DENIES THREATS

Charles F. Brody, chief clerk of the district attorney's office, said today that he had heard nothing of a bag containing photographs of Hauptmann reported to have been found in a subway.

James M. Fawcett, attorney for Hauptmann, in a prepared statement issued through his secretary said there had been rumors of threats against Hauptmann's wife and baby through the mails.

"This is not true," Fawcett said. "All mail received has been of a sympathetic nature."

The statement contained this announcement from Hauptmann:

"I wish to say to people and German-Americans I hope they believe my statement and help me. Seeing my wife and baby made me feel better. I hope the truth will be had soon. I always have been a good father and husband. I hope to get cleared soon."

There also was this statement from Mrs. Hauptmann:

"Today I am very happy because Mr. Foley again gave me a chance to have my husband see our baby."

The first witness before the grand jury was Mrs. Paulina Rausch, wife of the owner of the house where Hauptmann lived in East 222nd street, the Bronx.

Shortly afterward District Attorney Foley called before the jury Colonel Henry Breckinridge, counsel to Colonel Lindbergh, who took a prominent part in the search for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby two and a half years ago. Colonel Breckinridge, called at New York from upstate, would not talk before he entered the grand jury room.

Hauptmann was taken from his cell in the Bronx county jail again today and transported to the District Attorney's office for further questioning.

Other trails gave police a chance today to prove their contention that Hauptmann kidnaped the Lindbergh baby.

New York police took Hauptmann's carpentry tools for microscopic examination. They reasoned that nicks and bumps possibly might fit the tooled ridges and grooves on the home-made ladder down which the abductor carried the baby from a nursery window.

The ladder, which broke under the weight of the kidnaper and his victim, also figured prominently in a third track which the investigators took. They ordered an X-ray of Hauptmann's left ankle to determine whether a fracture had caused the phlebitis which he suffered months after the abduction.

Prosecutors say they are ready to press three charges.

Extortion in connection with the ransom double-cross is the charge before a Bronx county grand jury in this city. Defense counsel heard Hauptmann already had been indicted.

Kidnaping and murder charges are planned in New Jersey.

Searchers in the prisoner's home also found something which they evidently considered of value, but would not discuss. A package the size of a shoe box, it was taken to Foley's office to await his action.

The former German machine gunner was arrested in New York after a gasoline station attendant received a $10 gold note and jotted down the customer's automobile license number. The bill was from the $50,000 ransom which Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh paid for his son already dead. The license number was that of Hauptmann's car.

In the best manner of fiction, the unraveling of America's most notorious kidnaping brought the bereaved flier and the accused father—Hauptmann, too, has a little son—closer to a climatic meeting.

Lindbergh, now flying east to appear before the grand jury, saw an accomplice of the mysterious "John" who took the ransom over a cemetery wall. This was revealed last night. The man, a handkerchief over his face, peered into the aviator's automobile as Lindbergh awaited the return of his emissary, Dr. J. F. Condon.

Later the lookout dropped the handkerchief, apparently as a signal to his confederate behind the wall, and the colonel obtained a fleeting glimpse of the man's features.

TO SEE PICTURES

Federal agents will show Lindbergh a picture of Isador Fisch, to see whether the flier can identify him as well as the prisoner in the Bronx jail. Fisch, now dead, is the man who Hauptmann pretends gave him a small fortune for safekeeping. The money was part of the ransom, and police recovered $13,750 from Hauptmann's home.

Investigators are hurriedly winding their many skeins of evidence and pseudo-evidence so that Lindbergh may study them in the light of his experience as a leader of the hunt for his missing baby. His body was bound near his home two months after the kidnaping.

Lindbergh's appearance before the grand jury is set for tomorrow, the day on which Samuel Foley, district attorney for the Bronx, says he expects an indictment. James Fawcett, the defense lawyer, declined to disclose who had told him the true bill already had been voted.

Foley said that the extortion charge would not stand in the way should the New Jersey authorities wish to try Hauptmann on the more serious charges. Attorney General David Wilentz of the Garden state predicted extradition "probably within a week."

Hauptmann's tool kit held the interest of other investigators because the kidnap ladder bore marks of a plane, a chisel and a hammer, all of them clear enough under a microscope to be matched with the tools that made them.

TREATED AT HOSPITAL

Coupled with the decision to X-ray the suspect's leg came the news that an "Edward Hoffman" had been treated at a Bronx hospital for a fracture about midnight of March 1, 1932, the night of the kidnaping. The man gave a fictitious Yonkers address and did not return as instructed for further treatment.

Police said the hospital was the one to which Hauptmann's baby was taken when it became ill several months ago.

The treatment of "Hoffman" came to light after authorities had asked all hospitals in the city to check their records. A heavy footprint below the broken ladder had led investigators to believe it was the kidnaper's left leg which had been injured.

DOCTOR MAKES STATEMENT

Suggesting the X-Ray, Dr. Otto Meyer told investigators that he treated Hauptmann early in 1933 for an inflammatory condition which might have been caused by an injury long before he saw the patient.

"I am not insinuating that Hauptmann's injuries resulted from a fall from a ladder," said the physician. "I am not insinuating anything.

"I do not know if Hauptmann's phlebitis was caused by a sprained or fractured ankle. There are also many other causes of phlebitis such as infectious diseases — pneumonia, pleurisy, scarlet fever, tonsilitis."

Dr. Meyer did not recall that Hauptmann told of any accident. New York authorities are confident that whoever wrote the ransom notes signed his own death warrant as well.

NOTES MADE PUBLIC

They point out that the unusual symbol which was the signature of the kidnaper definitely links the writer to four stages of the crime. The same geometrical design appeared on the ransom demand left in the nursery, on a note received by Mrs. Lindbergh the following day, on letters during the ransom negotiations and on the receipt for the $50,000.

These notes, kept in a safe deposit box until they were brought out for evidence in the Hauptmann case, were made public by the New Jersey state police last night.

The fifteenth and last told an anxious father whose to go to find his 20-month-old son after paying the ransom. It was as false as the one which said: "Please tell Mrs. Lindbergh note to worry, the baby is well."

PRISONER IS INTERVIEWED

District Attorney Foley indicated that Mrs. Lindbergh, who is returning to the East with her husband, would be spared the ordeal of appearing before the grand jury.

Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh spent last night "somewhere in Missouri," their whereabouts kept a closely guarded secret while mechanics serviced their little blue plane for resumption of the flight.

Authoritative reports suggested that the Lindberghs might stop today in Columbus, Ohio, so that the Colonel might question George Paulin. Paulin is the Ohio penitentiary convict who says he received a mysterious message from Hauptmann telling in advance of the kidnaping plans.

Chapman Fletcher, a Department of Justice Agent, conferred with Paulin yesterday and sent his report to New York. New Jersey officialdom termed the prisoner a "romancer."

FISCH'S WRITING CLEARED

Fellow agents were seeking to prove that Fisch, the tubercular German friend and business associate of Hauptmann, was at the Bronx cemetery where the ransom was paid. Fisch, however, was not the writer of the ransom communications. Federal agents found his handwriting distinctly different.

Hauptmann's handwriting is similar to that of the notes, and investigators consider their case strengthened by the fact that the man from whom Hauptmann says he received the ransom could not E's written the demands for it.

At the same time, Attorney James M. Fawcett, counsel for the suspect, hurled a challenge to the prosecutors.

Fawcett was asked if he would have his client plead guilty to extortion charges in the event of Hauptmann's indictment tomorrow. The lawyer asserted that he had information assuring him that his client had already been indicted by the Bronx grand jury. Then he declared:

"I haven't for one minute given consideration to a plea of guilty."

Attorney Fawcett launched into a defense of the prisoner who awaits action by two states on the most serious felony charges on any court calendar.

Hauptmann, Fawcett insisted, has given him, in a personal interview, a "very good" explanation of how he came to have the Lindbergh ransom money in his possession.

'NANNA LEFT ME,' SAYS BOY, 5, ABANDONED IN CATHEDRAL

ALL MARKS CUT OFF OF NEW CLOTHING

In the darkened Cathedral of the Holy Cross on Sunday night an old woman and a little boy groped their way to a pew and knelt in prayer—the woman commending the child to the care of God.

While the boy still prayed the woman silently rose and tiptoed from the church.

That was the theory—deliberate abandonment—held by the police today after an intensive investigation had failed to turn up any claimant to the five-year-old tow-headed youngster found wandering in the darkness in the South End cathedral at 8:30 Sunday night.

CLOTHING UNMARKED

From his new clothes, union suit, blue woolen jacket, white linen shirt and tan-striped shorts all identifying marks had been removed.

The boy has an impediment in his speech which prevents him from making the story known, if he knows it. Whether it is caused by adenoids or palate has not yet been determined. He has also some trouble with his left ear, either abscess or mastoid, which is receiving treatment.

MOTHER IS "DEAD"

He was asked:

"What's your name?"

Or "Mary."

"What's your mother's name?"

The answer sounded the same as to the first question.

"Where is she?"

"She's dead." This was quite clear.

"Who left you in the church?"

"My nanna."

"What were you doing there?"

"Oh, my knees."

HAS THREE BROTHERS

"Nanna say to stay there?"

The answer was a nod.

"Where'd you get the clothes?"

"Nanna in stores."

"Any brothers or sisters?"

The answer again a nod.

"How many brothers?"

"Any sisters?"

A shake of the head.

When asked where he lives, the youngster says something that sounds like "Mill street." Police have checked along Mill street without result.

Taking Homesickness Cure

With a real policeman's hat to wear and a rocking horse to ride, a feller can't really get home-sick even if he is only five years old and either lost or abandoned by his relatives. This youngster, blonde, blue-eyed and well dressed, was found in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, South End. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

LEADERS SEEK UNITED PARTY FOR CURLEY

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—The smashing victory scored by former Mayor James M. Curley of Boston in the Massachusetts Democratic gubernatorial contest has focused national attention on the Bay State as one place where a clear-cut New Deal issue has been drawn for November's election.

Curley, original Roosevelt booster in Massachusetts, has sung the praises of Franklin D. Roosevelt even while some of his friends grumbled that he had been denied what they felt would have been a well-deserved reward.

Opposing him will be Gaspar G. Bacon, present Republican Lieutenant-Governor, who is an out-and-out opponent of the "New Deal" in all its ramifications.

VICTORY PREDICTED

A Curley victory—and administration officials predict he will ride into the Governor's chair—will be interpreted as a full endorsement of administration policies.

The party leaders here, incidentally, felt no regret at the defeat administered by Curley indirectly to Governor Ely, who threw his full support to General Cole, the convention-endorsed candidate, for the nomination. Ely, a die-hard Smith supporter, has been sharply critical of the New Deal on more than one occasion.

Indications are that the Democratic national committee now plans to apply soothing salves to wounds left from what was a bitterly fought primary war.

UNITED PARTY SOUGHT

Persuasive party leaders, it is reported, soon will slip into the state in an effort to have a united Democratic organization behind Curley in the drive for November votes.

It remains to be seen how much success they will have in enlisting Ely's aid.

One of the important results of Curley's triumph is its effect on the pre-primary convention system, inaugurated in Massachusetts for the first time this year.

Charles H. Cole walked off with the convention nomination, yet with the support of Senator Walsh and Governor Ely he was unable to withstand the Curley tide, and by his victory Curley demonstrated that a convention endorsement was far from tantamount to nomination.

Dog Comforts Baby in Bridge Tragedy

Hit pet dog, "Bozo," is only comforter of little Herbert Spokesfield, 18-months-old son of Mrs. Marie Spokesfield, mystery train-death victim. Clifford Spokesfield, baby Herbert's father, is held without bail on a charge of murder. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

FAMILY FIGHTS TO FREE TRAIN VICTIM'S MATE

Members of the family of Clifford C. Spokesfield of Westwood moved through counsel today to free the 28-year-old saxophonist who is held without bail for murder of his wife.

Attorney John W. Newman of Boston, retained for Spokesfield's arraignment yesterday, was to meet State Detective Michael F. Fleming and Chief of Police George M. McGilly of Westwood some time during the day. The first move is to have the trial date, October 1, brought forward.

STORIES CHECKED

Meanwhile, investigators were checking the story told to Boston police, with previous stories told by the young husband on Saturday night, when the dangled remains of Marie Rinckler Spokesfield were found on the cowcatcher of the Washington-Boston Express.

Among other things, police wanted to examine the full report of the autopsy conducted in the corpse by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary of Suffolk county. They were also trying to establish a motive for suicide on the part of his wife.

SUICIDE SAID "OUT"

Theory of accidental death, investigators insisted, was absolutely "out." The 35-foot plunge of the 24-year-old wife from the rail of the Green Lodge bridge in Westwood to the front of the speeding locomotive must be explained as a wilful act on the part of the victim or her husband, it was asserted.

Spokesfield's family announced last night that they will take care of the young wife's funeral, but that services will be strictly private on a date and at a place that will not be revealed.

They want to keep away the crowds of morbid persons that would otherwise attend, they said.

NEEDHAM QUITS COLE TO GET JOB

General Daniel Needham, commissioner of public safety, today formally tendered his resignation as commissioner to Governor Ely.

The Governor will appoint General Charles H. Cole, recent opponent of former Mayor Curley for the Democratic nomination as Governor, as the successor of General Needham. Cole's name is expected to be sent to the executive council at the regular meeting tomorrow.

For several months, Commissioner Needham has desired to return to his law practice. He took the appointment on a temporary basis with the main idea of re-organizing the department at the personal request of Governor Ely.

Connie Morrow Silent on Case

By International News Service

Northampton, Sept. 25—Miss Constance Morrow, aunt of the kidnaped and slain Lindbergh baby, refused to discuss developments of the case today as she resumed her studies at Smith College.

Constance, who, as a student at Milton Academy, was the recipient of a kidnap threat from a Boston man of alleged unsound mind, was among a group of undergraduates winning a scholarship from the Dwight W. Morrow, William A. Nelson and Sophie Smith funds.

Gold Bloc Nations Vote to Stand Pat

Geneva, Sept. 25 (INS)—The Gold Bloc nations today decided to maintain currencies at present gold parities "as one of the essential conditions for economic and financial restoration of the world." The decision was announced following two days of discussion by representatives of France, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Switzerland.

SUSPECT USED WIFE'S NAME

New York, Sept. 25—Bruno Richard Hauptmann used his wife's maiden name to speculate in the stock market, International News Service learned today.

While Hauptmann's market activities, from which he holds he derived his income, were termed "negligible" by investigators yesterday, maintenance of an account with Steiner, Rouse & Co.—an account which is understood to have involved investments of approximately $12,000—by the Bronx carpenter under his wife's name was revealed by Haupt Attorney James M. Fawcett.

Existence of the account was confirmed by Fawcett late yesterday. He said:

"Yes, there was an account—in her maiden name."

But only when pressed late last night for information as to where Mrs. Hauptmann had obtained $12,000 did he reveal that only Hauptmann had used it.

40 CCC'S HUNT VERMONT GIRL

By Associated Press

Bennington, Vt., Sept. 25—Forty members of the Civilian Conservation Corps today entered the mountains of southwestern Vermont to join in a search for Katherine Kearns, 16, who disappeared mysteriously two weeks ago today.

The young men, members of the camp at Peru, arrived in Bennington in motor trucks, and began a systematic search of the heavily forested mountain region east and south of the town.

The girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kearns of Bennington, went mountain climbing Monday preceding her disappearance with a Bennington youth, but she came safely out of the mountains and reached Fownal with the Bennington residents who believed she intended to go to Boston.

Boston authorities under the direction of Special Officer William Ross of the bureau of missing persons were requested to seek the girl in Boston where it was thought she might be visiting friends.

ROCKEFELLER'S NEPHEW DIES

By Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 25—Percy A. Rockefeller, nephew of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and a prominent New York financier, died early today.

He was a director of important banks and industrial corporations.

Rockefeller, who was a son of the late William Rockefeller, brother of the founder of Standard Oil, had been operated on at the Doctors' Hospital Saturday for a stomach disorder.

Percy Rockefeller was rated as one of the nation's wealthiest men, but was retiring and shunned the limelight. One of his few public appearances was during the Senate banking and currency committee's investigation of the New York Stock Exchange. Rockefeller was called before the committee in April, 1932, and queried concerning his huge market operations.

He was born in New York on February 27, 1878, and after the death of his father, represented the William Rockefeller interests in the National City Bank for several years. He resigned as a director of that institution May 11, 1933, because of ill health.

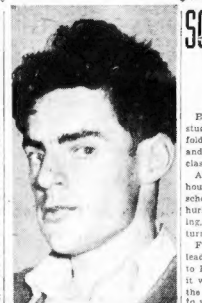
Dwyer Niece Weds Newsman Phelan

Miss Mary Alice Dwyer, niece of the Rev. Michael J. Dwyer, former district attorney of Suffolk County, became the bride of Thomas F. Phelan of Roxbury, Boston newspaperman, last Sunday night, it became known today.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William J. Casey, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, in the church. Mrs. Anna Campbell, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Thomas F. Donohue was best man.

Thomas Kenefick, U. S. Agent, Dead

Springfield, Sept. 25 (AP)—Thomas A. Kenefick, 52, narcotics division agent in the federal secret service since 1919, died suddenly in Plattsburg, N. Y., today. Before entering government service he was a police officer here and won commendation for rescue work.



Facing a charge of murdering his wife, Marie, 23, by hurling her in the path of a locomotive, Clifford Spokesfield, Westwood musician and ERA worker, insists that the woman, ill after drinking, fell or jumped to the railroad tracks from a bridge.

SCHOOL STRIKE IS ENDED

Brockton, Sept. 25—Striking students of Brockton high school folded their tents like the Arabs and silently stole back to their classrooms today.

After a one-day strike for shorter hours and more time to study in school, the strikers, who yesterday hurled bricks at the school building, meekly and obediently returned today.

Franklin Batson, self-appointed leader of the walkout, apologized to Headmaster John L. Miller and, it was estimated, fewer than 20 of the 2300 students failed to return to school.

The students, however, claim a partial victory in the strike. They have been assured a 15-minute supervised study period at the end of each recitation session and they are also allowed to return to their home rooms at lunch time. This enables those who bring their own lunches to eat in their home rooms instead of going to the cafeteria and buying food as they were forced to do when school first opened.

The school hours, bone of contention, remain unchanged. School opens at 8 a. m. and continues until 1:45 p. m. The strikers wanted sessions to end at 1:15.

Police Shot Fells Rampaging Steer

Traffic on the new Soldiers Field extension road was tied up for some time while a steer, escaped from the Brighton abattoir, raced in front of autos. When the animal reached Nonantum road, William J. Cronin, of the Metropolitan district police, came along in a cruising car and brought the animal down with one shot.

Crash Injuries Fatal to Boy, 20

Gloucester, Sept. 25—Frank Sinagra, 20, of Fort square, died today in Addison Gilbert hospital from injuries he received last Friday when his automobile crashed into a tree in Western avenue.

Sinagra is survived by his father, Carl Sinagra, six brothers and six sisters. He was a fisherman.

Robinson Tells of Roosevelt's Deeds

Istanbul, Sept. 25 (AP)—Senator Joseph P. Robinson of Arkansas told the Inter-Parliamentary Congress today that the United States had swung in behind President Roosevelt in his attack upon depression. He said:

"Eighteen months ago a complete breakdown of credit, finance, industry and business was threatened while speculation was unbridled. Franklin D. Roosevelt appeared and the country rallied to his leadership."

Robinson described the United States' method of reducing unemployment through labor on public works.

Cohasset Woman Faces Car Arrest

Warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Pauline Green, 31, of Jerusalem road, Cohasset, was issued today in Quincy court after she defaulted a summons on a charge that she has concealed mortgaged property —an automobile. Mrs. Green bought the car early last month, the court was told, but has defaulted payment.

The charge was brought by the Auto Owners Finance Co., Inc., of Boston and Quincy, whose counsel said attempts had been made to communicate with the woman by registered letter and that finally a summons to court had been left at her Jerusalem road home—all without result.

BIG INDUSTRIES OPEN DRIVE FOR REFORM

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 25 (INS)—President Roosevelt is returning to the capital tonight to face the most serious revolt—it amounts virtually to that—yet to appear against his administration.

It is the revolt of organized "big" business against many existing New Deal policies, accompanied by a demand to know where the administration proposes to go from here.

Half a dozen influential and erstwhile powerful organizations such as the National Manufacturers' Association, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the durable goods industry, are taking an active part in this movement to force the administration a little more to the "right."

The formation of the American Liberty League, composed of conservative stalwarts of both parties, a few weeks ago fits into the general figure.

DRIVE ON ROOSEVELT

Illustrative of the drive on Mr. Roosevelt to stem the tide to the left and turn right was the action of the board of directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce today in addressing what amounted to an open letter to the President asserting that "there is a general state of apprehension among business men of the country."

This apprehension, the chamber asserted, is due to (1) enormous federal expenditures, increasing taxes and budget uncertainty; (2) increasing governmental control over private business; (3) increasing governmental competition with private business; (4) increasing strikes and labor disturbances and (5) public utterances by those "who assume to speak for the administration destroying confidence in the security of property and investments."

FIRE SIX QUESTIONS

Such being the case, the directors then proceeded to ask the President six specific questions, to wit:

"1. When and how is it proposed to balance the federal budget?

"2. Is it the intention of the Administration further to reduce the value of the dollar; if so, then to what figure?

"3. Will the Administration at the earliest opportune moment collaborate with the other nations in an effort to agree upon international stabilization of exchange?

"4. Will the efforts of the Administration be directed toward recovery by the encouragement of business initiative, with a minimum of government interference and control, and will it discontinue its activities in competition with private enterprises?

"5. What s the Administration's policy toward agriculture?

"6—Is it the policy of the Administration to continue the construction and development of public works not now needed?"

By way of emphasis, the Chamber appended to this questionaire an imposing list of its directors and their affiliations.

RADIO TALK IN OFFING

Another Roosevelt radio talk to the country is believed in the immediate offing. It has been suggested to the President that an opportune time for such another "fireside" talk would be next week when the American Federation of Labor is holding its annual convention in San Francisco. That would give him an opportunity to talk to labor, and at the same time to business.

This is the time of the year for real riding pleasure. You can pick up a real bargain by watching the Automobile-for-Sale columns of the American and Advertiser.

European Peace and U. S. Recovery Views Expressed by W. R. Hearst

That was a good thought from an unexpected source.

There is no need for war between European nations.

There are no fundamental conflicts of interest, no basic racial antagonisms.

The same peoples who live in perpetual warfare in Europe live together in peace and harmony and content in the United States.

There are no high principles, no noble ideas involved in these European wars.

There is no motive more inspiring than a greed for territory.

These European nations are like the covetous landowner who explained that all he ever wanted was the properties next to his.

So in Europe for hundreds of years untold millions have been slain, untold wealth destroyed, immeasurable misery caused, simply because all that these European nations have wanted is the territories next to theirs.

If the question of war or peace were always left to a referendum vote of the people there would be few wars, if any.

Let the people who have to fight the wars decide by popular vote whether or not they want to fight them.

Deprive rulers of the right to involve peoples in war and make the penalty for so involving them at least as great as the penalty for any other kind of complicity in wholesale murder.

Surely these savage and suicidal nations must come to a condition of sense and semi-civilization some day.

If nothing else will teach them the next war will do so.

It will be in the air, and from the air, and the destruction will be so great, the murder not only of men, but of mothers and children so terrible, that even the criminally insane may halt and the suicidal maniacs be satisfied.

Did you ever read Bulwer Lytton's "Coming Race"?

The theory of war being destroyed by its own destructiveness is propounded there.

In any event, however, I don't think we will have any immediate war.

War is an expensive luxury, and many European peoples have not enough money to buy food, still less to make war.

You know the story of the young man who proposed to the girl, but said they could not be married immediately for seven reasons. The first being that he had not any money. The girl said, "Never mind the other six reasons. There isn't going to be any wedding."

So it is with impoverished nations. There may be seven reasons for war, but if they have not got any money there is not going to be any war.

How long will Hitler last?

MR. HEARST—I think Hitler may very possibly last until the next war. I don't think that any of the ruling classes anywhere will last after the next war.

We people outside of Germany don't think that Hitler is really the choice of the German people, but he is actually and overwhelmingly their choice.

They regard him as a Moses leading them out of their bondage, and their bondage since the war has been utter and bitter.

We may or may not like Hitler, but if you are in Germany the fact is obvious, indeed unavoidable, that the vast majority of the German people do like him and do support him aggressively and even emotionally.

He believes that he has the full sanction of the German people for himself and his policies.

When I talked with him I said as courteously as possible:

"Mr. Hitler, I must say frankly that I believe in democracy and I don't approve of dictators, not even of our own 'made in America' kind."

He said:

"I, too, believe in democracy and I abide by the judgment of the German people as expressed in their votes.

"I spread my plan of reconstruction before them and we received their approval at first by a small majority. I was not satisfied with that but in the second election we received two-thirds majority.

"According to the constitution of Weimar, under which we operate, when a man and a party receive a two-thirds vote from the German people it is a mandate from the people to proceed with their proposed program.

"Still I resubmitted myself and my program to the people in a third election and there received more than four-fifths majority in approval.

"I must therefore proceed with my program and I must not allow a small minority to interfere with the expressed will of the vast majority of the German people."

That is Mr. Hitler's idea and interpretation of the situation.

He considers himself a product of democracy—a democratic dictator.

Of course with our ideas of democracy in England and America a democratic dictator in autocratic power in a free country is anomalous, as incongruous as a feathered fish on hot ice.

With us where autocracy begins democracy ends.

Will Mussolini's recent outbreak disturb Europe?

MR. HEARST—I don't think so.

He is only talking for effect, if I may say so without offense.

He is like the gorilla in the forests beating its mighty breasts in order to terrify the other animals.

Mussolini's attitude is typically European, however.

He would be only too happy to add Austria and Southern France to his possessions, but he is an able, farseeing statesman and he is not going to run the risk of losing all that has recently been won for his country.

Then there is that other potent reason for not fighting—lack of money.

Do you remember the old German lady who said deploringly of the girl who married an artist, "und sie hat auch nichts"—and she hasn't anything either.

You see Italy hasn't anything either.

I don't think Italy will fight for aggression. I do not think Germany will fight except in defense or desperation. I do not think France is secure enough to fight. I do not think England wants to fight and I know America will not fight in any more European wars.

Our battle to make the world safe for democracy was a failure in its ultimate results.

There is little democracy now left in the world—even in our own country.

No, I don't think there will be war. Battles will be fought in pronunciamentos and in the press. Words will flow, but no blood—and thank God for that.

What do you think of the Roosevelt regime?

MR. HEARST—It is a very radical regime, but the sentiment of the people is radical.

After the depression at the end of Cleveland's administration dissatisfaction expressed itself in the formation of the Populist party.

This was an ultra-radical agrarian party denouncing "malefactors of great wealth" and opposing the control of politics by Wall Street, the financial center.

A return to primitive simplicity not only in politics, but apparel, was the social and economic program.

Sockless Jerry Simpson and men of his type were sent to Congress. Bailey of Texas inveighed against all who had ever worn a dress suit. There was labor discontent, too, and an epidemic of strikes and violence culminating in the Haymarket Massacres and the employment of federal troops to repress disorders.

History repeats itself. Similar causes create similar conditions. But as has been said, "the one thing we learn from history is that we never learn anything from history."

The powerful continue to abuse their privileges. The less successful rise in protest against inequality and injustice. Abuses are remedied and then recur.

The present high tide of radicalism will subside. It will ebb into customary conservatism. Prosperity will allay discontent. I remember that Mr. Bailey of Texas finished by wearing not only a dress suit but the uniform of the oil trust.

These waves of radicalism are a necessary thing, they tend to purify politics just as the tides purify the waters.

But we cannot prosper permanently under conditions of disorder and confusion and extremist experimentation.

Equalizing conditions and distributing wealth are salutary things. But for wealth to be distributed in steady streams it must first be created in constant and consistent manner.

Business cannot operate in disorder.

Industry cannot thrive under persistent interference and repression and employment cannot increase until business increases and industry expands.

Everything will, everything must, return to a stable basis in the United States and our affairs will be all the better for having had some purification and perhaps disinfection.

England went through her period of radicalism and reformation a little earlier than we did and she has returned to stable and prosperous conditions a little earlier than we have.

But we are coming along.

If the visionary extremists will kindly postpone any further experiments, if industry will be given a reasonable independence and opportunity to develop, if natural order will be allowed to take the place of regimentation and repression, we will soon be creating more wealth than ever in the United States and, what is equally important, distributing it better than ever.

Just save a place for the U. S. A. at the prosperity banquet, please. We may be a little late, but we will be there.

Fish Case Appeal Saves $230 Fine

Northampton, Sept. 25—Ransom W. Manley of Springfield saved $230 by appealing an illegal fishing case to Superior court here. When arraigned last June, Manley was fined $250—or $10 each for 25 horned pout he is alleged to have caught out of season. In Superior court here, the district attorney nol prossed the case except on five of the 25 fish. Thereupon the judge levied a fine of $50, which Manley paid.

PRICE-FIXING BY NRA FLAYED AT TRADE PARLEY

"Sordid attempts" to eliminate competition and build up monopoly by fixing prices were charged today tc the NRA codes by Dr. Paul H. Nystrom of the Columbia University Business School, speaking at the Boston Conference on Distribution.

In a withering criticism of code practices, the Columbia professor, who is also president of the Limited Urice Variety Stores Association, told the conferees at the Hotel Statler that code provisions, in many instances, are "the clever invention of special interests." He warned:

"I believe we are not two or three jumps away from catastrophe. I should like to see those provisions in the NRA codes pertaining to honesty in advertising and labor saved—and the rest dumped in the ditch.

SENT TO ROOSEVELT

"This whole price-fixing movement is unsocial and unsound. Prices have gone up. They have gone up much more than average wages or weekly earnings. They have made it harder to sell goods. They have added confusion and distress to a situation already extremely difficult.

"In many lines in which such code provisions have taken effect, physical production and sales are lower today than they were a year ago. In some cases they are lower than they were even at the very depth of the depression.

"This is not the way to stimulate business improvement. This is not a means by which American business methods and production can continue to improve."

After Dr. Nystrom's address, the conference voted that his paper be sent to President Roosevelt with the endorsement of the conference.

DONHAM PRAISES ROOSEVELT

Wallace Brett Donham, dean of Harvard Business School, speaking at the conference luncheon given in co-operation with the Advertising Club of Boston, praised the acts of President Roosevelt and his administration toward recovery, but added:

"The danger now is that mistakes will not be recognized and corrected in time and that the vast government organization may hinder rather than help business to start.

"In the search for security, without the President's intending anything of the sort, we may destroy initiative.

CONFIDENCE IS ESSENTIAL

"Where managers lack confidence in the future, business cannot pick up the load and employ the people. Only if management is effectively encouraged can government credit stand the strains which must result from the costs of our present program.

"Neither capital nor labor can work alone. Each depends on management, and management is more seriously disturbed now than ever, and with more reason. Our unemployed and the army of men now engaged on public works, as well as all men who have any savings, are vitally interested in changing the situation.

"The encouragement of business involves correcting past mistakes and removing fear of continuous new changes in policy.

WARNS OF FEAR

"It involves assurances relieving managers from general alarm that the government intends, not to be even-handed between employer and employe, but to force unionization, higher wage rates and shorter hours, and therefore higher prices, on our consuming public and our industries without any effective measures to stimulate sales at the new prices and without regard to the effect of high prices on consumption. As a result, demand has fallen off and with it total wage payments."

Albert D. Lasker, chairman of the board of Lord & Thomas, Inc., Chicago, told the conference America now has a real free press but to "limit the freedom of advertising, as it would be limited under the proposals of its adversaries, would do away with a large share of the American press." He asserted:

"Surley no country in the world can boast of a press, both local and national, such as we have in America. The type of American newspaper and magazine that we know is a free press.

PRESS IS UNBRIDLED

"Through the multiplicity of advertising, the press has become increasingly independent. For, as advertisers multiply, each individual advertiser counts for less and less. No advertiser today can influence the editor's fundamental policies.

"Any editor who might be thus influenced has a publication without influence. No more vicious calumny has ever been put forth than the suspicion that the press, in any major or important way, can be influenced editorially by its advertising patrons."

Louis E. Kirstein, vice-president of William Filene's Some Co., acted as chairman.

$473,000 Error Judge's Last Act in Beacon Suit

In his last official act before resigning from the superior court bench, Judge John J. Burns made an error of $472.00 in his memorandum in the Beacon Participations case, it was revealed today.

The disclosure was made in superior court before Judge Winfred Whiting when various motions for plaintiffs and respondents were argued in the $1,748,858 case brought against certain directors of Beacon Participations by Edward Spiege l,Boston attorney and minority stockholder.

It was shown that the error was made when Judge Barns omitted to order that Charles F. Adams, Boston business man and one of the defendant directors, was liable to the corporation for $473,000 in connection with a $520,000 note "dumped" on the Beacon corporation.

At the direction of Judge Whiting, Clerk ames F. McDermott read a letter he received from the former judge. McDermott read:

"This is postmarked as having been mailed September 24, 1934, in Arlington. The letter says: 'Sunday. Dear Jim—It may be that you will be officiating as clerk when the case of Spiegel vs. Beacon Participatios, Inc., comes before the court on the hearing on formal final decree.

"With that possibility in mind I wish to inform you that in the order for decree, through inadvertance, I failed to include the name of Cabriel S. Adams as one responsible for loss on the note transaction.

"'I think this appears sufficiently from the memorandum, but this letter is intended to avoid any chance of dispute.

"'With the sincere regard for you that I always have, I am,

"'Very truly yours,

"'JOHN J. BURNS.'"

Judge Whiting said the letter should remain with the clerk, and then remarked that a question of law presented itself as to whether a judge could correct a mistake of a judge who had resigned. Eventually the supreme court will pass on it.

Death Blamed to Irish Curse

Dublin, Sept. 25 (INS)—The ancient curse of the Waterford family was blamed by superstitious peasants for the death early today of the seventh Marquess of Waterford, holder of one of Ireland's oldest titles.

The Marquess, following his custom, arose at dawn for a rabbit shoot and was found dead a short while later with his shotgun by his side. Tradition declares that the Waterfords curse was issued ages ago during a dispute between title-holders and tenants. Several heads of the house met violent deaths in the prime of life.

James Roosevelt Flies With Davis

Pittsburgh, Sept. 25 — James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, was introduced here to U. S. Senator James J. Davis, (R-Pa) stern critic of the New Deal, and the pair boarded an eastbound plane together.

Police Trailing Girl Eloper, 15

Lexington authorities called upon Boston and state police today to block a suspected elopement dash of a 15-year-old Lexington schoolgirl and an 18-year-old boy.

Silva was gone from his home and his brother's coupe was also gone. Police broadcast the registration of the car and a description of Lillian, who is red-headed, five feet five inches tall and weighs 120 pounds.

N. H. Police Arrest South Boston Boy

John A. Laird, 13, of East Second street, South Boston, left Boston in the custody of Chief of Police Verne Spargue of Milton Mills, N. H., to face charges of burglary there. Laird was picked up by police here after two guns and a set of Maine registration plates were found in a South End lumber pile.

RED HEAD CLUE IN SPEER CASE

By JOHN H. NOONAN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Northfield, Sept. 25—Placing their secret woman witness under guard, police investigating the baffling shotgun murder of Dr. Elliott Speer today made public the description of a young red-haired man she saw two days before the crime buy ammunition of the type used by the killer.

This description, which police admitted, may be that of the slayer, is as follows:

Age, 19 or 20; height 5 feet 10 inches; weight 150-165 pounds; athletic build; reddish hair, cultured voice, green sweater, gray topcoat, gray felt hat.

ELIMINATES 7 SUSPECTS

A young man of this description bought four 12 guage shotgun shells loaded with Double-O shot at a local branch store of a mail order house on the Wednesday preceding the Friday that the Mt. Herman School head was slain by a blast of similar ammunition fired through a window of his residence on the campus.

The woman, who was awitness to the sale, last night at the school secretly viewed and eliminated six persons the authorities have had under suspicion. Today she eliminated a seventh.

A state trooper was assigned to guard her after she had been delayed in keeping an appointment with police by an unidentified man who called at her home and sought to learn if she were a witness.

This man posed as a newspaper man, but inasmuch as all reporters have pledged themselves not to reveal the identity of the witness he is believed to have misrepresented himself. He was described as of "very queer" appearance.

'RENEW STRIKE PLAN' GAINS

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 25—Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the Textile Strike Committee, said today sentiment for renewal of the strike was strong in southern mill centers because of allegedly widespread discrimination against strikers in reemployment of the workers.

Conditions rapidly approached normal in New England textile centers today as mill after mill reopened its gates and thousands of strikers returned to the looms.

Hovering over the complete recovery of the industry, however, was an order for enforcement of strikes at all mills discriminating against union members. This order was issued at Providence by Horace A. Riviere, general organizer for the United Textile Workers of America. He said:

"When we accepted the proposition of President Roosevelt, we did so in good faith and intend to live up to it, but if it is necessary to strike in every mill where there are reports of discrimination to enforce the request of the President, I propose to suggest to the general board of the UTW that this be done."

SIX MILLS SHUT

Immediate reaction to the Riviere order was the closing of six mills of the M. T. Stevens & Sons Company at Rockville, Conn., by a strike over the issue. The mills reopened yesterday with 1000 at work but few reported today.

Easthampton was the only place where National Guard troops remained on duty. There employers had refused to hire strikers on the ground "no additional help is needed." Picketing continued.

SUSPECT'S WIFE SHOULD 'TELL' IN DIRE CRIME, SAY WOMEN

GIRLS GIVE OPINION ON DEED SUCH AS LINDY KIDNAP

Would you, as a wife, protect your mate if evidence indicated he was guilty of a heinous crime . . . say the ruthless murder of a little child? If, in addition, that man demanded and collected money from the grief-stricken parents on the promise that he would return the child?

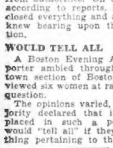
This thought is prompted by the natural interest of what is going on in the mind of Mrs. Anne Hauptmann, whose husband is under arrest, charged with extortion of ransom money from Colonel Lindbergh, father of the little baby Lindbergh.

It must be said here that there is no indication that Mrs. Hauptmann has withheld any information from authorities. On the contrary, according to reports, she has disclosed everything and anything she knew bearing upon the investigation.

WOULD TELL ALL

A Boston Evening American reporter ambled through the downtown section of Boston and interviewed six women at random on the question.

The opinions varied, but the majority declared that if they were placed in such a position they would "tell all" if they knew anything pertaining to the crime.



Madeline Reed, of 14 Sunnybrook road, Watertown said:

"If I were the wife there is no question about my turning evidence over to authorities. I would reveal every fact that I was aware of even it should send him to the electric chair or gallows.

"If a man could be so cruel and savage as to commit a crime such as the Lindbergh baby affair, there should be no place in a woman's heart for him."

Madeline Reed

The next person interviewed revealed a different attitude. Miss Erno Cummings, student, of 35 Upland street, Brighton, declared:

"If I were married to a man who was arrested for a crime such as the Lindy baby case, I don't think I would reveal my knowledge of the crime, providing I knew it was to police.

"I would attempt to save him even though it was

Erno Cummings

Mrs. Bertha Smith, housewife, of 115 Mt. Auburn st., Cambridge, said:

"A wife is placed in a very difficult position. If she loved him dearly she would want to protect him. He would come first. Even if I knew he was wrong I would make great sacrifices to make myself believe he was innocent. I would keep a closed mouth and say nothing. We would both be better off in the end."

Mrs. Bertha Smith

Miss Mary McNulty, hairdresser, 109 Arch street, Boston, after deliberating, declared:

"The question confronting a wife in this position has many phases. Her decision is not wholly based on the matter of loyalty . . . of a wife's duty to her mate. It rests on the bed rock basis of humanity's fundamental law . . . the instinct of self preservation. And it is the latter that would cause me to reveal the truth if my husband was guilty of such a horrible crime."

Mary McNulty

Miss Mary Brown, Oak avenue, West Roxbury, said she would not remain silent.

"Assuming I was the wife of a man charged with the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby, I would not conceal evidence. A man guilty of such a crime would not even appreciate a wife's refusal to betray him. If my evidence was the final link in the chain of evidence necessary to prove his guilt I would turn it over to prosecutors."

Ringsider at Film "Bout"

Fist Fight of Stars Sets All Hollywood Buzzing

By International News Service

Hollywood, Sept. 25—Hollywood buzzed today over its latest fist fight between celebrities.

In the presence of Gloria Swanson, Ernst Lubitsch, Fay Wray and other notables, Herbert Marshall, the actor, was knocked down by John Monk Saunders, scenario writer and former Pacific Coast gridiron hero.

The battle was staged at the home of Lubitsch, screen director, at a gay party in honor of Max Reinhardt, European producer.

"He forgot to smile when he made a certain remark," declared Saunders, the husband of Miss Wray.

"I really am not a Virginian, but I like to see a man smile when he says anything like that. Although regrettable I found it necessary to let Mr. Marshall have one on the chin. We had been the best of friends for years."

INSULT CHARGED

To which responded Marshall, who had accompanied glorious Gloria to the party:

"I can only say that Mr. Monk Saunders' statement is the best proof to date that he is a writer of melodramatic fiction.

"I can quite understand why he preferred fiction to fact in his statement inasmuch as the truth would compel him to admit that I was seated at the time he described his spectacular blow and looking in another direction.

"The only active part I played in his melodrama was to resent his insulting behavior to a lady at my table."

Said Lubitsch, whose home was the battle ground:

"This is most regrettable . . . particularly because Max Reinhardt was present . . . I can only say that it was nothing . . . just a little argument between friends . . . It was an artistic argument."

Saunders said that Marshall had seemed to resent a statement of comparison of beauty of Mrs. Saunders (Miss Wray) and Miss Swanson.

"I merely compared the similarity of their beauty," explained Saunders.

FAY AIDS MARSHALL

Miss Swanson rushed to Marshall.

Unaware that Marshall had been the victim of her husband, Miss Wray joined Miss Swanson in picking up Marshall from the floor.

Saunders meanwhile had retired to a neutral corner and he and Miss Wray shortly departed for home.

Marshall is a World War veteran and was a star on the London stage before coming to Hollywood.

Saunders was a star athlete at the University of Washington, where he won a Rhodes scholarship.

Present in ringside seats were Pola Negri, Marlene Dietrich, Irene and David Selznick, Virginia Bruce, former wife of John Gilbert, and Max Reinhardt's son, Gottfried.

DOLAN SHOCKED BY FEDERAL STRAW LOAN

Daniel C. Mulloney, president of the closed Federal National Bank, on trial in U. S. court, admitted today that William Dolan of the board of directors of the bank was "tremendously affected" when he saw the lease given as security for the $131,000 note of Miss Helen L. Ganley.

This note represented a loan to Miss Ganley, who is a niece of John A. Deery, Salem banker on trial with Mulloney for alleged violation of bank laws in connection with the loan.

ONE WAY LOAN STREET

Dolan inspected the note at a directors' meeting September 24, 1931, according to Mulloney, and was so affected that he jumped to his feet exclaiming:

Mulloney was under cross-examination by Special Asst. U. S. Attorney-General Irving G. McCann.

He testified the $131,000 loan was approved at the meeting in question. All members of the board were present except Chas. Falvey and Mr. Mahoney," he added.

Mulloney testified:

"As I recall, the lease of Miss Ganley was passed around. There were no comments from the other directors and we were proceeding with other matters.

DENIES EVADING AUDIT

"Finally the lease reached Mr. Dolan. He read the lease. When he finished reading the lease he jumped off his chair in a impetuous spirit and said to Mr. Deery: 'How do you put a thing like this over. It's like a one-way street.' He was tremendously affected by the merits of the lease."

Mulloney emphatically denied that he withdrew from the Clearing House to avoid an examination of his books.

McCann asked: "Isn't it a fact that after this loan was made you had to go to New York to borrow money?"

Mulloney replied: "The fact is that the cash position of the bank at this time was exceedingly strong, so strong in fact that the directors voted to adopt a conservative policy, and did decide on that date to reduce the interest on the savings department rate from 4 per cent to 3 per cent, knowing that it would result in the withdrawal of a million dollars, and which did happen."

"STRONGER AT CLOSE"

Mulloney said:

"Hoarding on banks, the textile strike in Lawrence and other causes constituted a constant pull on the Federal National Bank at that time, and in the ordinary course of business I went to New York to borrow money."

Mulloney, in answer to questions, said he made loans as freely in 1930 as he did in 1929 and that the bank was in much better condition in 1931 than it was in 1921.

'Jilted' by British Lord

Heartbroken, she says, over the crash of her "beautiful romance" with Lord Revelstoke, heir to a great British fortune, Miss Angela Joyce, London and Hollywood actress, is bringing suit for breach of promise.

Detroit Mayor Aids Girl Search

Detroit, Sept. 25 (AP)—An appeal to the city from Mayor Frank Couzens today brought countless numbers of new volunteers into the search for Lillian Gallaher, 11-year-old school girl, who disappeared last Thursday.

Mayor Couzens asked residents of every part of the city to keep a lookout for the child and report any clues they might find. Public interest has reached such a degree that police have been assigned to the Gallaher home to hold back crowds of curious.

REVELSTOKE'S LOVE SUIT SET

By International News Service

London, Sept. 25—Early hearing of the breach of promise suit brought against young Lord Revelstoke, heir to the huge fortune of his banker father, by Miss Angela Joyce, London and Hollywood actress, was assured today when the case was set for trial during the court term commencing October 2.

Miss Joyce believes she can recover heavy damages from Lord Revelstoke by establishing that they were on romantic terms and that he asked her to marry him before he wed Miss Flora Fermor-Hesketh, daughter of Sir Thomas Fermor-Hesketh and granddaughter of the late Vice-President Breckinridge of the United States, March 2.

ROOSEVELT, JR., ESCAPES FINE AT HARVARD

Just when it appeared that Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., camera-shy son of the President, was in for a $5 fine and a possible ban for the first half-year for failing to register on time at Harvard, it was revealed today that he had been allowed to register with the dean last night.

Young Roosevelt, this year a sophomore, arrived in Cambridge too late yesterday to register with other upperclassmen in Memorial Hall and had not appeared up to the close of registering there.

Shortly before 6 p. m., however, he arrived at the office of the dean and was allowed to check in formally, thus avoiding all penalties.

"A student who fails to register on the prescribed date may be refused the privilege of registration during the first half-year.

"A student who fails to register at the time set is required to pay a charge of five dollars to the bursar. Payment of this charge does not preclude disciplinary action by the Administrative Board."

OFFICER SAVES NINE IN BLAZE

Risking his life to dash through smoke and flames and rescue an imperilled man, wife and their seven children, Sergt. John L. Donovan made his last trip from a burning South End building, then collapsed today. He was treated for smoke inhalation and will recover.

Fire, which police term as incendiary, broke out in the rear of the bar of the South End Citizens' Club quarters on the first floor of the four-story building at 3786 Washington street.

Fed by several containers of what officials call "inflammable fluid," the fire roared up through the second floor, then to the roof.

Sergeant Donovan saw the fire, raced to an alarm box, then dashed into the building. Mr. and Mrs. William Malahouis and their seven children were trapped on the second floor.

The policeman grasped two of the children, ordered the frightened parents to take a couple more and together they fought their way out. Then Donovan returned to carry the remaining children to safety. Damage is estimated at $1500.

changed human beings from a migratory race to a race of fixed home buildings and home lovers.

No matter where or what the home, longing for it causes most dreadful suffering, even death.

In old days of slave-catching, homesickness killed thousands shipped to this country by slave raiders in Africa.

Last night the French Premier, Doumergue, was to assure Frenchmen that France will maintain the gold standard.

The French know what they are about, need no advice, but dear French money, competing with cheap American money, will mean less buying from France.

This is the time for Americans to make perfect their wines here things that hitherto have been purchased in France, particularly at this time. Let American wine-growers to prove that they can make good, sound wines, comparable to French wines.

This would involve strict supervision by states in which vineyards are important, California particularly. It would mean penalizing and the widespread custom of mixing wines, "doctoring them," and other practices harmful to an important industry.

The base cruelty of human beings passes all understanding. When you read of the terrible tortures that representatives of various religions have inflicted upon each other in the past, all "for the glory of God," you are horrified.

Even more horrible to read of modern criminals, seizing, binding, fastening to a tree an innocent child supposed to have money. Vinita, Okla., reports the details. The old man's hands were tied through the palms with bullets, his feet burned with a red hot poker, all to extort $60.

RANSOM NOTES MADE PUBLIC

By Universal Service

New York, Sept. 25—Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey state police, made public the official copies of the series of ransom notes received by Colonel Lindbergh and others interested in the case following the kidnaping of the Lindbergh boy.

The complete text of the notes, beginning with the first letter, asking that $50,000 be ready, and the others tracing the negotiations with Dr. John F. "Jafsie" Condon until the time he gave $50,000 to a representative of the kidnapers in a Bronx cemetery, were first published Saturday in the Boston Evening American in a story copyrighted by Universal Service and the Los Angeles Examiner.

Hale Vote 1701 in Official Count

Augusta, Me., Sept. 25 (AP)—Official tabulation of votes today showed U. S. Senator Frederick Hale to have been re-elected in the recent Maine election over F. Harold Dubord, Democratic national committeeman, by 1701 votes. Unofficial tabulation gave Hale a slightly more than 1200 margin.

The tabulation, completed today by Secretary of State Robinson Tobey and other State officials, was subject to revision pending a meeting of Governor Louis J. Brann and the Executive Council next week. It gave Hale 139,824 votes to 138,123 for Dubord.

166 LESS MEN AT HARVARD

Harvard University registered 166 less students this year than last according to figures given out today by Harvard officials.

The figures compiled at the close of yesterday's registration show there are 7301 now enrolled, whereas last year there were 7467. The figure is expected to be slightly increased by late registration.

In Harvard College the enrollment jumped from 3429 to 3522. This is partially caused by a large freshman registration of 1021 and it is said there will be a concerted effort in the future to limit the freshman class to 1000.

In the Engineering School there was a drop from 363 to 310. This is in line with the recommendation of the engineering faculty that undergraduates interested in engineering register in Harvard College to obtain a broad general education before beginning their graduate engineering study.

machine gun killer, Murton Millen, as she awaited a sentence that could be probation—could be 21 years in prison.

Norma was told last night that tomorrow she would be taken before Judge Nelson P. Brown in Norfolk Superior Court for sentence as an accessory after the murders of Patrolman Forbes McLeod and Frank O. Haddock, and after the robbery of the Needham Trust Company. Her mother said:

"She cried all night long and ate no breakfast. I took her some soup and sandwiches and cake."

Norma will be eight or nine pounds plumper when she goes into court tomorrow than she was during her trial in June, her mother revealed. The jail fare has apparently agreed with her under the same roof where her husband, Murton; his brother Irving, and Abe Faber await sentence of death for the actual crime.

REALIZES HER PLIGHT

Mrs. Brighton said: "She is just beginning to realize now what it is all about. It has been like a nightmare to her. I have explained to her that Judge A. Douglas, Brown and District Attorney Dewing both had duties to perform.

"Nobody can make me believe she was wicked or without guilty. She may have been thoughtless."

Mrs. Brighton, estranged from Norma's father, the Rev. Norman Brighton, former minister, of Natick, is still employed at the Tewksbury State Hospital, and will seek tomorrow afternoon off in order to be in court when Norma hears her fate.

She went to Dedham today under the impression that sentence would be pronounced today. Before going to the jail she called at the office of District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing, but found no one there.

APPEAL FLIGHT MONDAY

Judge Brown, who presided at trial of the Millens Faber, and later at the trial of Norma, has given no indication of the sentence to be pronounced.

Regardless of the sentence, Dewing said, arguments will be opened before the Supreme Court on Monday in connection with the appeal taken by Norma's counsel, George

Hauptmann Jail Pal Vanishes

By Associated Press

Kamenz, Germany, Sept. 25—Apparently annoyed by recent revelations, one of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's early companions in wrongdoing—a man who turned over a new leaf and became a respected member of the community—has vanished without a word.

He is Fritz Pactzold, who back in 1919, was sentenced with Hauptmann to five years in jail for larceny.

Swiss to Maintain Saar Neutrality

Berne, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Swiss government today moved to ensure "strict maintenance of Swiss neutrality" in the Saar and to discourage recruiting of extra police to maintain order during the plebiscite in January. The action followed a request of the Saar governing commission to the League of Nations for extra police when the Saar votes on whether it will continue to be governed by the League, revert to Germany or become French.

DEAD MEN DO TELL TALES—IN WRITING

The signature of the mysterious Isadore Fisch, deceased friend of Bruno R. Hauptmann, arrested by police in the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, are compared here with the writing on the kidnap notes and with the signatures of Hauptmann. Police say that there is a wide difference in the Fisch signature and the scribblings on the ransom notes. Handwriting experts, however, on the strength of Hauptmann's assertion that Fisch left the money, found buried in his garage, and identified as the ransom money, in his care before leaving for Germany in 1933, are putting the writing to every known test. Fisch's signature appears on an application to a club and an American Express traveller's cheque.

LITTLE BABY MANFRED HAUPTMANN DOING A GYMNASTIC STUNT IN THE RECENT HOME OF THE KIDNAPER PRISONER AT BRONX, NEW YORK

"HELLO, OPERATOR, PLEASE RING MY PAPA"—All that Baby Manfred Hauptmann knows about his father, Bruno R. Hauptmann, Lindbergh kidnap-murder suspect, is that "papa is away somewhere." On his toy telephone, little Manfred puts make-believe calls in for his dad—but dad doesn't answer. And Manfred's mother, Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, just cries and cries and can't explain. WEARY BUT UNBROKEN—Collarless and with his head bent wearily forward, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Lindbergh kidnap-murder suspect, faces court with his stony self-possession still unshaken.

TIBBETT SINGS "PAGLIACCI" AIR ROLE

Singing tenor is certainly no easy proposition for a famous baritone. However, friend Lawrence Tibbett takes pleasure in performing when the order is a big one. Thus and so the larynx of Lawrence must undergo somewhat of a soloing strain (WEZ) at 6:30, while he holds forth to turn in "Pagliacci" as part of his 45 minute assignment on the air.

In fact, three roles in the famous "Pagliacci" opera have been assumed by the same Mr. Lawrence Tibbett. He proposes to give what is considered an unprecedented vocal exhibition Tibbett finds himself cast as Silvio (the lover) in a broad baritone range, also Tonio (the clown) a lyric baritone role and lastly as Canio (the jealous husband) which is to be a full voiced tenor turn, if ever there was one. Shades of Enrico Caruso!

Lawrence Tibbett (husband) which is to be a full voiced tenor turn, if ever there was one.

POPULAR PIECE

Florence Bigland, Mario Chamlee and John Barclay are the "Beauty Box Theater" personalities this evening (WEEI) between 10 and 11 o'clock.

Among the air artists who adequately maintain their up-front position by way of a true conception of what's wanted, the well known Bing Crosby rates high. Tonight, the deep voiced songster sets out (WNAC) with "Pardon My Southern Accent" and "For All We Know" for his first two selections. He is slated to sing others, of course. What's more, the Boswell Sisters slide in there with him, having "Two Cigarettes in the Dark" and "I Only Have Eyes for You" for their harmony contribution.

SECRET AGENT SHOW

Mouth organ music is always not only acceptable, but really relished by scores of loud speaker patrons, especially when well rendered. Accordingly, as the weekly Boston American "Secret Agent X-9" setting takes the air (WAAB) from 6:30 until 6:45 p. m., the Franklin Park Harmonica outfit catches the call. This juvenile organization, comprising 10 talented lads between the ages of 11 and 14, is representative of recent ERA recruiting efforts. They fill the "guest artist" place under the direction of Joseph Lapidus.

Some snappy down East dialect entertainment is in store (WEEI) while that "Snow Village" sketch occupies the ozone (WEEI) tonight on and after the stroke of 9:30 p. m. It seems that "Nevile and Dickey" is a general store partnership, with "Hiram Neville" attempting to run for sheriff on the side. One can well imagine what happens to the profits, not to mention the cigars. Always a good sound sanctum show, this one!

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt concludes her current series of five coast to coast talk turns by broadcasting a "Day at the White House" impression (WBZ) come 9:30 tonight. During the 30 minutes, the First Lady figures to tell what an average day is like behind the scenes, meaning as hostess and wife of the President.

Edwin C. Hill Joins Film News

Edwin C. Hill, famous news commentator, whose column, "The Human Side of the News," appears as a daily feature in the Boston Evening American, has gone into the movies. The magic voice of the radio will appear as the new Globe Trotter of the Hearst Metrotone News, beginning Tuesday, Oct. 2.

Mr. Hill's inimitable and vivid word descriptions of the news events of the world will be a welcome addition to this highly interesting and educational newsreel, which will be shown exclusively in Boston each week at Loew's State and Orpheum theatres.

Best Tomorrow

This Ear— —That Air

By N. F. T.

Taking issue with contemporaries isn't the general run of procedure in this column conducting profession (ahem) although now and then someone of our number sets down an assertion that is more than well worthy of dispute. Right now I have in mind to flatly contradict a certain New Yorker named Peter Dixon. Verily he may have an opportunity to smack me down in manner. At the minute however, my argument with him is as follows:

Peter put out a splendidly written but sadly lacking piece in his New York Sun radio space last Saturday. He was claiming that without a Paul Whiteman approval stamp, any studio singer or songstress under his direction finds it difficult to make much marked progress. Peter's understand. Peter readily praised the Whiteman willingness to permit his performers to take their own individual bows. We agree there absolutely. Indeed, the talented Ramona, Peggy Healy, Jack Fulton and others now enjoy deserving eminence. Otherwise, this rather overly enthusiastic Dixon viewpoint is that few figures have ever arrived after parting company with Paul. He does thoughtfully make exception in the individual case of Bing Crosby. There, as others he strangely forgets. Just to be two to one up on him, I ever so softly call attention to Mr. Morton Downey and Miss Mildred Bailey, former Whiteman workers now conceded to be network big timers, as the term applies in radioland.

Last night brought a brand new network show (WAAB) sliding across the 9:30 to 10 half hour and the comedians were Block and Sully. Stating it was a new studio show is one thing. Too bad the opposite must be said of every joke the pair pulled.

That special "Salute to the Admiral Byrd Expedition" effort due over CBS network facilities from the Boston studios of WNAC tomorrow night, will include soloing by Alice Joy, current Yankee Network pride and joy, and the duetting of soprano Helen Barr and baritoning Richard Jardon, who migrate to the opposition Buckminster studios only with WEEI permission . . . Sammy Liner, well known night club maestro foreabouts, isn't agreeing with brother John at all lately . . . John now considers joining business forces with rythm orkjah Joe Rines . . . When classic concert or symphony announcing is in order, Program Director Arthur Edes is hastily drafted at the WEEI echo emporium. Meaning that Arthur is a learned spokesman and an unerring pronouncer of the involved names those famous foreign composers bore. Harry (Nick Parkyakakas) Einstein goes back to the Eddie Cantor extravaganza early in October.

Rogers Welcomes M. I. T. Freshmen

Two hundred Technology freshmen gathered at Walker Memorial last night at the welcoming smoker to the incoming class. Professor Robert E. Rogers was the toastmaster for the assembly, at which President Karl T. Compton extended to the class of '38 the greeting of the faculty and student body.

Boxing bouts, with the co-captains of the varsity boxing team, Ed Gaughan and Nichols Latthes, in action, was one of the features of the program.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWERS

BRIDGE QUEEN RAPS GAMBLING

A new and difficult problem has been saddled to the shoulders of bridge hostesses by the First Lady of Bridge, Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

It is, she says in the October Good House keeping Magazine, the task of keeping guests, who can afford only a twenty-fifth-of-a-cent limit, from playing a five-cent-a-point game.

And the hostess, she says, must be a quiet watchdog for those of her friends who are easily persuaded to gamble. Playing for stakes, she continues, has about eliminated the "old-fashioned" custom of playing for a prize in society's private homes.

Mrs. Culbertson

"Some women," Mrs. Culbertson says, "have the itch to play a big game whether they can or not. The hostess who is a true friend will keep temptation out of their way by placing them at the low-stakes tables.

"Only a hostess who is a duh player herself would permit a weak player, who insists on playing for one-twentieth-of-a-cent a point, to sit down with strong players, who like a penny-or-more-a-point game."

True lovers of contract do not play for rewards, but for the game, itself, she concludes.

CCC Youth Jailed for Theft of Auto

Providence, R. I., Sept. 25—Edward C. Cheslock, 18, of Worcester, Mass., was sentenced to two months by Judge Philip C. Joslin here for stealing an automobile.

Cheslock, member of the CCC camp at Bourne, Mass., wrecked the car after driving it but a few hundred yards, the court was told.

AMERICAN-ADVERTISER EIGHTH ANNUAL COOKING SCHOOL

SESSIONS OPEN AT COOKING SCHOOL

All visitors at today's big opening session of the Martha Lee American-Advertiser Free Cooking School will be invited to come up on the stage after the session to meet the lecturer, Mrs. Frances T. Northcross.

"I hope every woman of Boston finds herself in that reception line. I want to feel that I know every homemaker in your city. I feel that the unusually interested co-operation of the club women, and business concern of Boston means that the Cooking School will be one of the most important and interesting of the many that these newspapers have presented, and it will be, I hope, one I shall never forget for its enthusiasm, size and general success."

The Free Cooking School is sufficiently important to attract record crowds on the merits of this nationally known lecturer alone, who has won many friends on her two previous visits. But there are other features, including the handsome display of gifts from local concerns. The foods discussed and used are new, the ideas put forth by Mrs. Northcross differ from those which most housekeepers have been following, the recipes which she prepares on the stage, and others which she gives from the platform, and on the free printed programs, are not only new, but they are designed to meet the problems of the homemaker and hostess. There are dishes intended for daily luncheons and dinners, others which are perfect for guest dinners; some are designed as economy dishes.

The products described and used in the stage kitchen are all on sale in Greater Boston; so that recipes may be duplicated at home after the session; menu suggestions may be carried out at the first dinner after the session closes; clever little touches in garnishing and seasoning may be tried at the first meal cooked after attending the Cooking School.

Pour Milk Over Beater

Coward Shoes, Daily Prize

Each day, some fortunate visitor to the American-Advertiser Free Cooking School in the Hotel Bradford, will receive a coupon for fitting to a pair of the famous Coward Shoes, from the Coward Shoe Co., Inc. at 30 West street, Boston.

The ardours of housework, and being constantly on one's feet, requires shoes that support the feet and give the easeful comfort so essential to health and efficiency. Housewives make a mistake to go about their daily duties in shoes which are run down at the heel, or so loose that they cause the feet to spread.

Coward Shoes are designed to hold arches in proper position and to keep the feet moulded in the proper manner so that the wearer is fresh and ready for evening social activities after the day's task are ended.

Coward Shoes are just as easeful for shopping and othtr occasions outside of the home because every pair is designed by specialists, who know how to combine smart style with comfort. These factors, together with finest materials and workmanship have won a premier place in the preference of American women.

MOVIES DEMAND SMOOTH SKIN

The depression hasn't frightened off the unknown extra girls that throng Hollywood's casting offices hoping for a chance at some small part that will break the ranks for them.

Some of these girls now in Hollywood will reach stardom. Others won't. People say it's luck. But it isn't luck! And even beauty is not enough. Any Hollywood casting director will tell you that many a beauty is passed over in the extra line. What is this charm, then, that's essential for success on the screen?

Famous directors and producers say, "The most compelling charm any girl can have is smooth skin. Because people respond to its appeal so instantly, no girl can rise to stardom on the screen without it."

Make-up can give eyes and mouth a new fascination—can actually change a person's looks. But the glaring studio lights reveal even the tiniest flaws in a girl's skin. Talkies have made it even more difficult to get by, because of the increased number of close-ups.

Exact Heat in Range Burner

While the widest appeal of Range Oil Burners (for kitchen ranges) lies in the labor-saving, dirt-free comfort they provide—the Florence Stove Company points out their great value in better cooking. Heat (exactly regulated by a valve) can be controlled far more precisely than with coal. Thus perfect temperatures for every sort of heating and baking are obtained. And the flame can be raised or lowered instantly, unlike coal.

The Florence Stove Company has on the market seven different models of range burners—with metal tank and valve fittings in various color schemes harmonizing with modern kitchens—with automatic electric pump, or hand pump (eliminating need of removing fuel tank for filling), and inexpensive models with metal or glass reservoirs.

There are also many new models of Florence Oil-burning Heaters—cabinet heaters heating up to 5 rooms; heaters with concealed cooking top; heaters that can be moved from room to room; and radiant heaters for single rooms, offices, stores, etc. All have handsome modern designs and finishes.

Flavor the Ham

When boiling a ham, the flavor is improved by the addition to the water of a teacup of vinegar, a teacup of brown sugar and a few cloves.

A. & P. COFFEES AT SCHOOL

When the delicious, pungent aroma of coffee wafts through the audience each day at the American-Advertiser Cooking School, it will be made from "freshly ground" coffee from the nearest Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. store.

Whether it is "Eight O'Clock," "Red Circle" or "Bokar", the finest coffee flavor is assured by the A & P policy of grinding each order fresh when ordered. This fact, coupled with fresh roasting each day and daily deliveries to the stores, has won thousands of people to those three coffees. Each coffee is individual, "Eight O'Clock" being mild and mellow, "Red Circle" being distinguished by richness and full body and "Bokar" famous for its vigorous, winey flavor. All are equally good whether made by drip or percolator method.

Through A. & P.'s great coffee service, the cream of South American crops is brought direct from the growers to your neighborhood store.

How to Clean Clock

Gadgets Board an Attraction

The board on which the newest kitchen gadgets are displayed at the Cooking School in Hotel Bradford is a genuine attraction to all who are in attendance.

The variety of articles shown on the board is indicative of the complete and up-to-date stocks which Jordan Marsh Company carries in its home furnishing department.

Dicers, slicers and parers; new ideas in pastry moulds, time and labor savers and other gadgets that are marvels of inventive genius, are on the board in fascinating array.

Jordan's is always alert to obtain each new idea along these lines, as soon as it is introduced, and many shoppers have thus formed the habit of strolling through the home furnishing department frequently to see the new things that are being shown.

Apple Suggestions

Have you served baked apples stuffed with sausages for a main dish? Or scalloped sweet potatoes and apples in place of potatoes? Or, as an accompaniment for roast pork, apple slices that have been flavored and colored by stewing them with red cinnamon candies?

EUREKA CLEANS EFFICIENTLY

In the new, two-speed Eureka vacuum cleaner, which is to be given as a prize at the American-Advertiser Cooking School, high vacuum, an original Eureka feature, has been combined for the first time with a motor driven brush.

This double action not only removes all of the surface litter from rugs, such as threads, lint and hair, but also vacuums out the deeply imbedded fine dust that impairs the appearance and wear of rugs.

This new Eureka weighs only 14½ pounds. Its light weight makes it easy to operate and yet the nozzle is 14 inches wide, a greater width than other cleaners, which naturally gets faster cleaning action.

The cleaner is quiet and has special rubber-tired wheels to prevent noise on bare floors. The tilting device is a convenience, permitting the cleaner to ride on two wheels when not in use.

Eureka has many other features which modern housewives will appreciate.

IT'S HOUGHTON DINNERWARE

The attractive dinnerware, which is winning so much favorable comment from attendants at the American-Advertiser Free Cooking School, was provided by Houghton's, which also furnished the glassware.

Mrs. Frances Northcross, lecturer at the school, asserts that a table artistically set with distinctive dinnerware and sparkling glassware in the right color scheme, is not only a credit to the good taste of the homemaker but it is an incentive to taste on the part of family or guests.

The department devoted to dinnerware and glassware at Houghton's has always been famous with Greater Boston housewives, who have learned by experience that here they will find quality combined with attractive prices.

Measure Shortening

NEW FLAT TOP FEATURE OF GLENWOOD

The Glenwood "Masterpiece" gas range, which is being featured by the Boston Consolidated Gas Co., and which will be given as a prize at the American-Advertiser Free Cooking School, is especially striking in design, the new flat top being the outstanding feature.

With this top it is possible to carry on cooking preparations right on the range while it is operating.

Adjoining is the "Easy Clean" cooking top, neatly concealed by a smooth, flat cover that raises to form a protective splasher back when burners are being used.

The range is styled to harmonize with modern mechanical refrigerators and kitchen units and completely outmodes the old type of range. Through sheer simplicity of design, this new Glenwood model has achieved quiet dignity without sacrifice of utility or rugged construction.

The finish is white, or the new light ivory enamel. The cast iron cooking top is in smooth black enamel finish, and pots or pans slide easily from one burner to another.

The "Speedlux" top burners are smooth and brightly burnished. There are no holes to clog and the burner gives an intensely hot, even blue ring of flame that is faster and more economical.

Other features include an improved, draw-out broiler compartment; an oven 15 inches high which permits more baking at one time and less cost, and operates on the Glenwood recirculation flue principle of absolutely uniform baking heat; thorough rust-proof enamel inside and out, and automatic top burner lighter.

Educator Bakes Novelty Crackers

With an increase in entertaining forecast for the coming winter, the foresighted homemaker will see to it that the supply of Educator Crackers is kept replenished. Each season, Educator bakers produce new ideas in tasteful crackers. There are sweet crackers for tea and bridge parties, saltines and cheese crackers for buffet luncheons and snacks with beer, and other novelties that are first aid to the successful hostess.

Educator Crackers will be found in the 25 baskets given out at the Cooking School.

Maestros of Harmonica

Borrah Minevitch and his Harmonica Rascals, starring this week at the Metropolitan Theater, are scheduled to entertain the Cooking School at Hotel Bradford Thursday. Minevitch, a former Boston boy, has won international fame as a stage and radio artist and the school is fortunate in having the opportunity to hear his band.

Ferdinand's Model Rooms Feature of Two Stores

Frank Ferdinand, Inc., with stores at Dudley Street Terminal, Cambridge and Needham, is believed to have the largest number of model rooms at the Roxbury store and in Cambridge of any furniture store in America.

With 103 of these model rooms, prospective home furnishers see exactly how various types of furniture will look in their own rooms. Ferdinand decorators assemble these rooms with care for each detail of furnishing. The result is an array of rooms that are not only correct as to period and color schemes, but charmingly livable.

In commenting on the dinette set which is one of the major prizes to be awarded at the American-Advertiser Cooking School, F. H. Welton, president of Ferdinand's, said:

"We devote an entire floor in our Roxbury store to dinette and breakfast sets and have, we believe, the largest selection of any store in Boston, with a wide choice in woods, finishes and prices. We have found that patrons appreciate having such a complete stock to choose from."

Ferdinand's, which was established in 1869, has progressed through the years by adhering to a policy of selling only home furnishings of dependable quality at valuerful prices. Over three generations of New Englanders have been served by Ferdinand's, and the growth of the business to present proportions is a tribute to the quality of furniture and to the policies of this progressive concern.

Vitamin Garnishes

What is known as "hot news," was the recent announcement that a Hungarian scientist has discovered paprika contains Vitamin C.

It has been found also that our own Georgia-grown pimentoes already known to contain vitamin C, are generously supplied with Vitamin A, perhaps as much as in cod liver oil. Now you have an extra reason for using these colorful garnishes.

Chipped Beef, a Complete Meal

Creamed chipped beef on toast is a splendid dish for a September day. Many people like things which have a salty flavor, something which will stimulate the lagging appetite. When served with beer, the above dish will make a complete meal.

If you wish to give an added spiciness to the dried beef, try adding a bottle of beer to your usual recipe.

New Mustard Has Pouring Quality

One of the newest food products is a zestful mustard that pours like heavy cream. It has been introduced by Stickney & Poor, the famous New England spice concern.

Homemakers who have tried it are enthusiastic about the flavor it imparts to salads and cold meats. A dash of this pouring mustard on a sizzling steak makes a hit with hungry husbands.

Keep Color of Fruit

To prevent peaches discoloring after they are sliced, slice them directly into a large bowl. Then sprinkle them with a tablespoon of lemon juice and spread over them all the sugar you intend to use, so that it forms a thick, nearly air-tight blanket.

Mix Spices First

Mix all your spices together first, before you add them to a batter—you'll find it will give a much better blended flavor. Some people like to make up and keep on hand a blend of their favorite spices which they use for cookies and gingerbreads and spice cakes.

"I TALKED TO AN EXPERT ABOUT Good Tea"

BY MRS. FRANCES NORTHCROSS
OF THE HOME ECONOMICS SCHOOL

As a newspaperwoman, when I want the facts about anything, I go to the person who knows them best.

Naturally, when I decided to find out how I could be sure of always getting good tea, I turned to the food expert in charge of our cooking school. Here is what she said:

"If you want genuinely good tea, the kind that charms you with its fine flavor and alluring fragrance, buy India's good Black tea. It is fast becoming America's favorite. It is so rich, winy and full-flavored. And it costs no more than ordinary teas. To get India Tea, look for the India trademark (below) on every package of tea you buy."

INDIA TEA

P. S. I've followed this advice. I can assure you that my praise of India Tea merits a front page story.

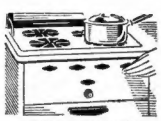
Reduced from $88 to $69 with a further reduction of 10% for your old range which will be taken as down payment, you can put this range in your home now without any immediate cash investment. The net cost of $62.10 can be paid on easy budget terms of $1 a week.

This month you have the opportunity to take advantage of one of the most sensational and sweeping price reductions that we have ever offered on a gas range!

All the more sensational because this reduction is made on the newest, the latest type of gas equipment yet developed, manufactured by the largest and finest manufacturer of ranges in New England. This range built to sell for $88 has been slashed by us to $62.10—a price that should enable many Greater Boston families to make a much needed replacement of their old, out-of-date equipment with this latest and most improved gas range.

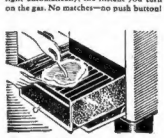
With the Glenwood "Masterpiece" you will know the pleasure of every up-to-the-minute cooking convenience and improvement. First of all, beautiful, modern table-top design—smooth, acid-proof, stain-resisting enamel top, with the convenience of table space right next to the cooking burners. Self lighting top and oven burners bring instantaneous flame at the turn of the handle. Oven heat control automatically maintains any desired temperature in the thickly insulated oven. The broiling facilities are the most convenient ever developed.

See this range today. You will never have a better opportunity to really save!



AUTOMATIC LIGHTING

Both the oven burner and top burners light automatically, the instant you turn on the gas. No matches—no push button!



IMPROVED BROILING

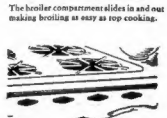
SPEEDLUX BURNERS

No holes to clog or get dirty. Sparkling clean, smooth and attractive in appearance. Give increased cooking speed and allow finer adjustment of heat from intense to slow simmering flame.



OVEN HEAT CONTROL

GLENWOOD RANGE AWARDED AT COOKING SCHOOL

A Glenwood gas range will be awarded at each session to some lucky visitor to the cooking school. The method of award will be announced at each session.

Credit Serves Homemakers

Most well managed homes are operated on a budget system. In this plan, credit purchases should be included because the plan aids the orderly buying of the numerous articles required for personal use or the home without undue strain on finances.

One of the leading organizations extending the credit privilege is the Washington Jewelry Co., with 4 main store at 365 Washington st., and a branch store at 503 Washington st.

In addition to jewelry watches and other items of personal adornment, these stores carry the newest designs in silver flatware, a variety of articles for beautifying the dining table, and electric utilities, such as urn sets, percolators and grills.

FORD DEALERS ARE TO GIVE FREE RIDES

Homemakers of Metropolitan Boston, who plan to attend the American Advertisers Cooking School at the Hotel Statler next week, will have an opportunity to see the latest models of the Ford Motor Co. free of charge.

Through the cooperation of Metropolitan Ford dealers, free transportation will be provided. All that is required is to call the nearest Ford dealer at Lasell 4000, and a car will be provided to take you to the Hotel Statler. Immediately after the lecture, the car will return you to your home.

This unusual offer will make it possible for those attending the first week's demonstrations to see the new Ford cars on display in the Statler garage.

Nothing of this kind has ever been attempted in cooking lessons and it is expected that the many users of the Ford automobile will take advantage of the opportunity.

Edison Customer Now Has Lighting Responsibility

After a record month of lamp exchanges at the Edison Shops [illegible] metropolitan Boston [illegible] than two men on electrical [illegible] of various sizes and shapes were exchanged for [illegible] 48-year-old plans of [illegible] lamp exchange's new department [illegible] The Edison Company of Boston, Effective September 1 [illegible] order of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities, the order to discontinue the lamp service was linked with a reduction in rate. The result is that now the responsibility of maintaining good lighting is more than ever before the responsibility of the consumer.

In other words, the lamp-buying public must needs be aware when [illegible] lamp is [illegible] of [illegible] The Edison Company [illegible] Boylston Street, Boston, offices of the company. The Dudley at Roxbury, Dorchester, Brighton, Brookline, Chelsea and Somerville shops were close seconds in that order.

The Edison Company will continue to provide to its customers the services of light ng experts who will give advice on lighting in both domestic and commercial fields without charge. In addit on all of the established Edison shops throughout the territory served by the company will carry a complete line of bulbs as merchandise. Customers of the company will be entitled to a discount of 10% for purchases of six or more bulbs.

With the discontinuance of free lamp service the illuminating engineering division of the company mailed the following recommendations to the public:

1. Buy only lamps of standard quality bearing the trade-mark of an American manufacturer whose name and reputation you recognize.
2. Insist upon maximum lighting efficiency as well as freedom from annoying [illegible] and early [illegible] use only lamps rated 115V to 125 volts.
3. Be sure to purchase lamps of [illegible] adequate for your needs [illegible] as avoid eyestrain and fatigue.

CRISCO CHOSEN FOR RECIPES

The advantages of using Crisco to insure uniformly good results in pastry recipes is being demonstrated by Mrs. Frances Northcross at the American-Advertiser Free Cooking School in the Hotel Bradford.

Crisco, made from the finest vegetable oils, is prepared in a manner which gives it a solid consistency yet it melts quickly, creams readily and blends perfectly with other ingredients.

Crisco is used for many culinary purposes as shortening, for cakes, cookies, pastry, biscuits etc. and also as a frying fat. In pastry its full shortening power insures the desired tenderness in baked foods. For frying Crisco is ideal because it may be used over and over again even for onions, without losing its freshness. It is also free from odor and does not smoke up the kitchen as many fats do.

Unlike some fats Crisco does not have to be kept in the refrigerator. A teaspoonful of cool grease in the cupboard should be used.

In recipes calling for butter Crisco may be substituted, taking care that a teaspoonful of salt be added to each cup of Crisco.

Nut Chopper Handy

Among the gadgets that have a definite place in the kitchen is a nut chopper. It consists of a glass jar. The chopper top screws on a top on the jar. The nuts are put into the "hopper" a few at a time and ground into the jar, or the action may be reversed and the nuts put into the jar and ground directly over cookies, [illegible] meringues and salads.

Pressure Cooker a School Prize

One of the prizes to be awarded at the American-Advertiser Cooking School at the Hotel Bradford will be a large sized Pressure Cooker from Sears-Roebuck Co.

This pressure cooker is designed for cooking a variety of articles which is quite preparation without the addition of water.

High Food Value in Kellogg's Bran

Kellogg's All Bran which will be found on the dais baskets [illegible] the Cooking School, is high in food element value, as are all Kellogg products.

Mothers find it an ideal breakfast food for growing children, and grownups like it with cream and fruit.

Nothing is finer for making muffins than All Bran because the bread keeps fresh and moist when the muffins are cold thus permitting re-heating, provided the hungry folks haven't eaten them all at the first sitting.

Avoid Mildew

During the humid days of early September, table linens, if put into [illegible] clothes hamper while [illegible] damp, become mildewed. Mildew [illegible] is grown, which if [illegible] action on the cloth for [illegible] time may cause the [illegible] to ignite the fire. Remove [illegible] spots by rubbing [illegible] soap [illegible] along the line [illegible] the [illegible] must be thoroughly rinsed.

PENN FLOWERS AT SCHOOL

In the new setting, the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Bradford, the flowers provided by Penn, the Florist, 124 Tremont st., are more artistic than at any previous session of the school, for each of which Henry Penn has provided floral decorations.

Mr. Penn states that this year, in particular, a greatly increased number of homemakers have been using flowers for dining table decoration as well as for adding living color notes to the central room of the home.

Any type of fat flowers, with nature's own color scheme, harmonized with the tones of the room's decorations and brings a charm and brightness that nothing else can achieve.

Each day a Penn bouquet is given out at the close of the session, and the award always brings a smile of genuine pleasure to the recipient.

Wash Vegetables in Cold Water

All vegetables should be thoroughly washed with cold water, then prepared according to their needs utilizing as much as possible of them. Potatoes, for example may be baked in their jackets, thus eliminating all waste and utilizing the valuable minerals. If baked they should be thoroughly scrubbed that the skin may be eaten by those who like it. Carrots need be only scraped but turnips must be thickly peeled.

'BLUE LABEL' IS FAMOUS NAME

Curtice Brothers Company of Rochester, N. Y. which is situated in the heart of the Genesee Valley, are the packers of the famous "Blue Label Foods" which have been favorably known and used by discriminating families since 1868.

Curtice Brothers Company have during a long term enjoyed an enviable reputation in the grocery field as packers of quality products. The canning plant is located right in the section where the climate and soil are most favorable for canning perfect ripe fruits and vegetables of finest flavor and taste.

Tomatoes grown in this section are admittedly superior to those from most sections of the country. From these tomatoes selected and picked at just the right stage of their prime and rich vitamins Blue Label Ketchup, Tomato Juice, Tomato Juice Cocktail and Chili Sauce are made. Long experience up to date equipment and strict sanitary regulations combined with the use of only the best spices and raw materials, has made the name "Blue Label" synonymous with quality throughout the country.

Curtice Brothers Company were pioneers in adopting a "wide mouth" bottle for their Blue Label Ketchup, which did away with thumping, shaking and often disastrous results in getting out of the bottle. "It Pours." Curtice Brothers Company were also one of the first to introduce Tomato Juice Cocktail, and this delicious, "eye" drink now enjoys a remarkable sale and is obtainable practically at all grocery stores.

Avoid Lumpy Sugar

Use granulated sugar in every recipe that calls for just "sugar." It makes no difference whether it's beet or cane sugar, but it should be free from lumps. If it's lumpy, sift [illegible] before using.

CRISCO is the creamy digestible fat

Mrs. Paul Brown has a reputation for lovely cakes and crispy crullers. And she loves desserts herself. But she has had to be very careful of her diet. She says: "I myself am a victim of indigestion if I don't watch what I eat. Once, if I ate rich refreshments at night, I couldn't sleep. But I have found that anything in which I have used Crisco agrees with me. Now I eat whatever I like. I feel that CRISCO is digestible. For instance, my husband—who is a lover of sweets—can eat 2 pieces of Crisco cake or pie and have no ill effects."

MRS. BROWN'S STORY IN PICTURES
You were having a little digestive trouble a while ago, Mrs. Brown?
Yes, if I was careless about what I ate at night I couldn't get a good night's sleep.
But I noticed that CRISCO pie or cake always agreed with me.
I can understand why — you know CRISCO digests quickly — doesn't overtax the stomach
Yes, Crisco is digestible. Mr. Brown can eat 2 pieces of Crisco pie with no ill effects.
I always fry with CRISCO — it makes crullers and potatoes so crispy and digestible.

At the American Cooking School, conducted this week in Bradford Hotel, Mrs. Frances Northcross uses and recommends CRISCO, the modern, quick-digesting shortening.

RAISIN NUT PIE

1½ cups seedless raisins
1½ cups boiling water
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
Juice of 2 lemons
Juice of 1 orange
½ cup chopped walnuts
Digestible Crisco Pastry (see Master Recipe below)

Cook the raisins in the boiling water 5 minutes. Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt together. Add to the raisin and water mixture. Cook until thick, then remove from fire and add lemon and orange juice. When cool, stir in the nutmeats. Line pie plate with Digestible Crisco Pastry (see double-crust proportions in Master Recipe below). Brush bottom with melted Crisco to prevent soaking. Put in filling, dot with bits of fluffy digestible Crisco, cover with strips of pastry arranged lattice-fashion. Bake in a hot oven (450° F.) about 10 minutes, then reduce heat to moderate (350° F.) and finish baking—about 20 minutes longer.

SWEET POTATO PIE

2 cups mashed sweet potatoes
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon melted Crisco
2 cups milk, scalded
2 eggs

Blend mashed sweet potatoes with salt, sugar, nutmeg, and Crisco (the sweet, digestible shortening). Add hot milk and fold in eggs, well beaten. Transfer to a deep pan lined with digestible Crisco pastry (see Master Recipe below). Bake in a hot oven (425° F.) for the first 10 minutes to set the under crust. Then reduce the heat to moderate (350° F.) and continue cooking until the filling is delicately brown on top and firm in the center—about 30 minutes longer.

All Measurements Level. Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Crisco is the registered trademark of a shortening manufactured by the Procter & Gamble Co.

DIGESTIBLE CRISCO PASTRY

(Master Recipe)

DOUBLE-CRUST: 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅔ cup Crisco, 6 to 8 tablespoons water.

SINGLE-CRUST: 1 ¼ cups flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup Crisco, 4 to 6 tablespoons water.

Crumbly Crisco Crust—Sift flour and salt. Do not chill Crisco, use creamy, digestible shortening. Cut in Crisco finely. Add just enough cold water to hold mixture together.

Flaky Crisco Crust—Sift flour and salt. Chill Crisco; use sweet, digestible shortening. Cut in Crisco coarsely. Add ice-cold water, just enough to hold mixture together.

From here on, the method is the same:—Roll pastry ⅛ inch thick on lightly floured board. For baked shell, cover inverted pie-plate. Prick bottom and sides. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 15 minutes. For two-crust pie, bake 10 minutes in hot oven (450° F.) then reduce to moderate (350° F.). Bake until filling is done.

"ROBERTA" CLOTHES FANCIFULLY FORETELL TALE OF BRILLIANT WINTER FASHION

Plaids Take Smartly to Crocheted Silk Frock

FOR SVELTE, flattering fit we rather think the new silk crochet things gather the palm. Notice the raised goring of the skirt, the slightly flared line which gives the most effective and practical fit for hand-made things—eliminating the tendency to cling at hem and over-emphasize hip lines. Large buttons and a bright plaid, a wide belt and a really smart length of jacket make a blouse that is young, gay, and will be adored by both the club woman and her college-age daughter. If you would like directions for crocheting this two-piece frock, writes to Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Lavish Use of Furs and Sequins

By Annice Brink

YOU'LL have to learn a wicked, ophidian glide if the interpretations of glamorous new fashion ideas as soon in "Roberta" are seized upon as eagerly as they were by the opening's audience, last night.

Satin's superlative molding qualities were fully realized through clever cutting that sheathed the figure to the knees more closely than seemed possible.

SEQUINS GLITTER

Sequins were generously used, and, interesting enough, were reflected in the audience. A gold sequin contee over black velvet going down the aisle before the curtain rose seemed, a few moments later, like the ruffle of a drum preceding a dazzling fanfare, as six sequinned gowns appeared on the stage.

And even when a gown bowed slightly in Miss West's direction—as in a drop-shouldered, bos-ed, and trained gown of fuschia velvet and fuschia-dyed ostrich—the emphasis was on a long, sinuous curve rather than the "pest-me-a-grape" kind.

Trained lame with a flange swung low around the hips and ending in a huge bow in back was an obeisance toward the "robe de style" that appears regularly with important formal functions of a new season. Sables and silver fox on lame were royal.

Last year's froth of ruffles that clung around the ankles exactly as does kelp in an in-swirling tide is replaced by new hem-interest. Rope-rolled contrasting bands weighted down a yards-wide skirt and hem. Flatly box-pleated edging hung slim and straight, with a knee-high split breaking its hobble-effect.

DOOM FOR HOBBLES

And speaking of hobbles, many a sympathetic heart almost burst with joy when Odette Myrtil tore off, bit by savage bit, the hobblingest hobble skirt. Beware, oh you couturiers!

Kiviette, the designer of "Gowns by Roberta," did several exquisitely subtle things for Tamara, who was to perfection the expatriate Russian Princess in love with a bulkingly handsome young American.

A silver-white ottoman tunic over a black skirt was in its turn topped by a coat fastening at the left shoulder. The coat dipped on a slanting line to the hem of the tunic, in order to show the ottoman and the heavy cord tied at the waist.

Back-draping featured an interesting black street. Slight double folds at the knee and the calf lifted the skirt several inches at a center seam in back up to a tiny bustle bow. From the knees down, the seam was split to show a ruffled bifeta petticoat. Lingerie starched chiffon and lace edged a square neck and elbow-sleeves. The front's fitted lines were unbroken by seam or belt.

Lips Are Given Tempting New Illusion

By Juliet Shelby

CLEAR AS A CLARION the Call of the Campus is echoing throughout the land, and the same old thrills of grammar school days when we carried a new pencil and a fat new lunch box under our arms, is awaiting thousands of youngsters this month.

There will be an added thrill to returning to college these days if a girl's wardrobe is stocked with a few extravagances. Just as clothes are the criterion by which freshmen are judged when they are strangers on the campus, so are cosmetics. To youthful femininity the call of the campus is not only a call to earnest study, but a call to gayety as well.

A lipstick plays as essential a part in the college curriculum these days as any text book Therefore in choosing one, be sure that it is suitable for the college type of girl. There is a new one on the market that was created particularly for youth.

Our cousins, the English, haven't forgotten our needs, for a famous house that stands high for quality and smartness, has brought out an Indelible lipstick in a cherry shade that is ravishing for all girls of the blonde or semi-blonde type.

A lot of lipsticks claim to be indelible, but I can safely vouch for this one. In fact it required three soap and water cleansings before I could remove all traces from my lips. It comes in an ultra smart container—as attractive a case as I have seen in a long time. They are made in platinum finished metal in a modernistic ten-sided design with a little band of green-gold circling them. And what's more the name of the shade is engraved—not pasted—on the bottom of the container, so you are sure to get the one for which you ask—not one that has been mislabeled.

I have always known that as cosmeticians the English were a clever race, but my hat is off to them anew. They have uncannily foreseen our wants at the time of year, and knowing that none of us wish to compromise with quality and smartness in order to balance a lowered beauty budget—they have set a price that any pocket can easily meet.

You may learn the name of this new indelible, modernistic lipstick by telephoning Juliet Shelby, Liberty 4000. Or if you prefer writing for this information, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston, along with your inquiry.

Lotion for Eye Strain

Question: Can you tell me what causes my eyelids to have a distinct purplish tinge? My eyes are generally swollen and are continually tired.

D. K., Brockton.

Answer: Your eye condition indicates eye strain. Perhaps you should consult an eye specialist. Take better care of your eyes. Bathe them frequently with eye lotion, salt and water or a boracic acid solution. Get more rest and sleep. Don't use your eyes too much. Smooth cream around them and apply compresses of cotton wrung from cold water and drenched with witch hazel or cold tea. Then relax.

Advanced Unblocking Is Too Seldom Noticed

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Unblocking is so important a part of correct card playing in Contract Bridge that I like to emphasize it as much as possible.

The deal represented below illustrates a type of 'unblocking play which is too seldom recognized, even by advanced players. It seems at first glance as though this play might cost a trick. On the contrary, it not only should never lose a trick, but should often prove the only means of gaining two or three long cards in the suit opened.

	♠ A Q 5 2 ♡ K J 4 ◇ Q 7 2 ♣ 10 9 7
♠ 9 7 ♡ A 8 2 ◇ J 10 9 6 5 ♣ K 4 3	North West East South	♠ J 10 8 3 ♡ 9 7 6 5 ◇ K 4 ♣ 8 5 2
	♠ K 6 4 ♡ Q 10 3 ◇ A 8 3 ♣ A Q J 6

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 N T (1)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) While he had not only a biddable club suit, but also adequate support in spades, South did not feel that the response which his hand justified in either of these suits would express his strength, unless he made a forcing takeout, for which he felt that his poor distribution made his hand very weak. The three-notrump bid showed that he held 3½ honor-tricks.

West opened the diamond Jack, upon which Dummy's diamond deuce was played. East, with a worthless hand, felt that the best he could do was to join enthusiastically in his partner's attempt to establish diamonds by unblocking the suit. On the diamond Jack East therefore played his King, despite the fact that the Queen was exposed in the Dummy. South made the natural play by ducking the diamond King. He assumed without question that this King was a singleton, in which case the duck would assure the contract against any break. But East led a second diamond round.

East's unblocking play allowed West, when he first regained the lead with the King of clubs, to lead a second round of diamonds and establish the suit immediately; and when West acquired the lead again with the heart Ace, the diamonds were established, and he ran two more tricks in that suit, which with the previous diamond trick and two tricks in side suits defeated the contract.

If East had not played the King of diamonds at his first opportunity, South would have won the first trick with the Ace and would then have let West in the lead with either the heart Ace or club King. When West continued diamonds, East would have been forced to win the trick and could not have led diamonds again, so West's remaining diamonds would have been as yet unestablished when his second entry was forced out.

There is one case in which East's play would have been improper—when it might be reasonable to assume West's opening lead of the Jack to be from a suit such as A J 10 x x. In such cases, the suit can be declared without loss by East's allowing the Jack to win the first trick. But South's three-no-trump bid had led East to the conclusion that his diamonds could not be completely worthless.

It is of interest to note that had South outguessed East on the opening lead, he could still have made contract. I will leave the reader the fun of working out the correct line of play

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE —:— By Adele Garrison

CHAPTER 149

I WAS watching Avis Arlen so closely that I was able to catch the look of chagrin—of angry frustration, rather—that swept across her face when I told her that she would dress where she was going to sleep—in my room

"How perfectly sweet of you!" she gurgled. "May I go right up?"

"We'll take you," Marion and Caroline chorused.

"Jim already has taken your bags upstairs," I told her, for I had seen Jim appear around the corner of the house as the cars drew up, and had heard Dicky's directions to him. "I have cleared off the right side of my dressing table for you, and there are plenty of extra hangers in the closet on the right side. I'll be up in a minute."

"Oh, please don't bother," she pleaded. "I know I shall be so comfortable, except that I'm miserable at putting you out so. I'd much rather you'd hang me up on a nail somewhere."

"Sorry," I said, smiling, "but I really haven't one handy. It is much less trouble to share my room with you. I am sure we shall get along famously. Run along now, and I'll see that there's something hot for you to eat and drink when you come down."

"I don't see No-el—and Mary," she said plaintively

"Did you expect to see them?" Marion asked lightly. "If you did, I'm going to hand you a medal for being an incurable optimist.

"They're just hopeless saps," Carolyn contributed.

I saw Ronald and Bob going through a burlesqued ceremony of bidding each other goodby, as if they were undertaking some dangerous venture. As they saw me, they wheeled, clicked their heels together and flung up their right hands.

"We, who are about to go absolutely haywire, salute you," they paraphrased, and with a smile at their nonsense I went out to the kitchen to give direction to Katie for preparing a hurried supper for Avis.

"Katie's a life-saver," Noel said, with a grateful look at the queen of our kitchen. "This is the only place in the house where Mary and I can have two minutes to ourselves without being interrupted."

"Yah!" Katie agreed largely. "Me, I vas young too, vunce, already yet, und I know vat young tings vant."

Gift for the Hostess

Dear Mrs. Reeckman:

1. My sister and I are going to the World's Fair soon. We have been invited to stay at the home of a friend of my mother's. None of us has seen this friend for thirteen years. After our stay would it be appropriate to leave a gift for our hostess?

C.

1. As a bow of appreciation for such exceptional hospitality as this friend of your mother offers you, it would certainly be most appropriate for you to give this gift. In fact, under the circumstances, I should think that you should plan to give a very important and consequential gift to your kind hostess.

STOLEN CAR WRECKS EVERETT HOME

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

If anyone had asked me what event could possibly steal the front pages of our newspapers the morning after such a political campaign as we have just been through, I should probably have denied any such possibility. Perhaps the death of the President or some momentous disaster in this part of the country. But in my search for a probable story I should most certainly have forgotten the Lindbergh case.

Robert E. Rogers

But the newspapers with one accord took it for granted that the interest roused by that tragedy is only latent, not dead, and that any piece of real news implying that progress has been made on the unravelling of the mystery and the punishment of the kidnaper-murderers would revive instantaneously that fierce excitement which gripped the country for two or three whole months not so many years ago.

Apparently the man who received the ransom money, even while the baby was lying dead in the woods, has been captured. Whether it can be proved that he was also the kidnaper and murderer is another question. The public will have faith, however, that the federal organization that has succeeded thus far will persevere to the end of the road. And there is good reason for that faith.

One of the most interesting developments of the past year or two has been the growth of public confidence and faith in the federal department of justice and its methods of investigation. To a lesser extent, also, there has been increased faith in the state police. As a kind of corollary our faith in local and municipal police has been seriously shaken.

This reputation has been gained chiefly in two kinds of cases. The Lindbergh baby kidnaping gave rise to a considerable number of similar cases. This increase in a kind of crime hitherto rare came as a challenge to both state and federal authorities. The quite extraordinary success of the police in clearing up an evil which came so closely home to the feelings of every citizen did much to focus the attention of the public on the federal and state service.

Hardly less in interest were the cases of Dillinger and his accomplices. Here again was a sensational case, with the crime being constantly repeated and a continuous loss of life accompanying the robberies. The federal police pledged themselves to get their men and after a considerable period of under-cover work succeeded under circumstances even more sensational than the Hauptmann arrest. The capture and death of Dillinger was followed by that of his chief henchman.

Both the Dillinger denouement and the Lindbergh arrest broke on the public out of a clear sky. The work of the police had been conducted in strict secrecy. The result justifies that secrecy.

One of the reasons why the local police are often so unsuccessful in their work is this very lack of secrecy. There are others, of course. There is always political influence on the local police. A year or two ago the last months of prohibition were made shameful by the sensational inability (or unwillingness) of the local police to do anything effective to combat bootlegging and the results and corollaries of bootlegging, such as crime in night clubs, gangster rings, and all that. There were constant leaks of the police plans. The police seemed hamstrung.

Even more dangerous to police efficiency is the pressure upon them to give out all their news. Newspapers, of course, wish to furnish their readers with the latest and fullest news.

The temper of our people at present is such that they would welcome a national Scotland Yard, with branches in every state, which should take over matters of major crime from the local police. Such a step would certainly make for a confidence which does not at present exist.

The American public looks forward confidently to a complete solution of the Lindbergh crime and adequate punishment for its perpetrator or perpetrators. Adequate, of course, means nothing less than death.

HEIRESS CALLS OFF HARVARD ROMANCE

By FRANCIS P. O'NEILL

Somewhere and sometime, between the dark and the daylight, the Honeymoon Special that was to carry Dorothea Rose Vallea on and on to wedded bliss got derailed.

Why, only Dorothea herself can tell. And she won't. But the brave little belle from Memphis, Tenn., who was all ready to spurn a "substantial" legacy to marry a Harvard boy, jes' changed her mind.

Dorothea, a Radcliffe grad of 1934, and Lester L. Carlisle, Jr., Crimson graduate student, got Cambridge all a-litter when they filed wedding intentions yesterday afternoon. Reporters cheered. The first Harvard romance of the season!

To make it better, Dorothea, who is only 20 by the calendar, announced she'd be tickled pink to marry Harvard boy, jes' changed her mind.

CALLS BRIDAL OFF

It was a great romance until the Boston Evening American reporter unearthed the little lady in the early hours of the morning after—which was today—and the following conversation, or something like it, took place.

"Good morning, Miss Vallea; I just wanted to ask you about your——"

"I'm not going to be married."

This was somewhat of a shock. Gathering himself together, the intrepid reporter pursued:

"But you filed wedding intentions."

"I didn't file wedding intentions."

"Yeah, but somebody filed wedding intentions and you said you were going to get married."

"That's all over. Lester filed the intentions and he'll have to unfile them. May I repeat, there isn't going to be any wedding."

Apparently the wedding was off, the reporter thought. But there was the legacy business. So—

"Well, how about that legacy, Miss Vallea? I understand—"

"There isn't any legacy."

"How old are you, Miss Vallea?"

"I'm 20 and I'll be 21 on the 15th of next June."

LEGACY COMPLICATION

"Now, how about the engagement, Miss Vallea? Is that—"

"The engagement is off, too."

"And, if the engagement is off, and the wedding is off, and the legacy is off, what are you going to do about it with?"

"Oh, I'll get the legacy, all right."

"You say now you'll get the legacy all right?"

Miss Vallea had announced that she was going to get a job, while her fiance continued his studies at the Harvard graduate school. But maybe that was off too.

Everett House Hit by Four-Wheeled 'Quake

Occupants of this dwelling house on Ferry street, Everett, thought their home had been hit by an earthquake, but it was only a four-wheeled one. The damage, shown as it was inspected by Police Officer Edward J. Duggan, done by a runaway automobile.

The automobile "earthquake," which hit their home, nearly threw from their bed Edwin and Donald Barr, seven and six years old, who were asleep up stairs when the house was rammed by a runaway car. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Photographer.)

MAYOR DONATES HIS $1600 PAY

Mayor John J. Irwin of Medford today turned over to City Treasurer John J. Ward his $1600 pay as a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, in ten $100 checks and one $600 check. A previous payment of $200 has been turned over to the city treasurer, making a total of $1800.

When Mayor Irwin was inaugurated he announced that as he was drawing two salaries from the public treasury he would turn over the salary as a Representative to the city to be used for charitable purposes.

Mayor Irwin, with the payments made to the city treasurer, has established a maternity fund which will provide hospital care for mothers instead of having them sent to the city almshouse where, prior to establishment of the fund, a number of babies were born.

Dever Thanks His Supporters

Paul A. Dever, Democratic nominee for attorney-general, today thanked the Boston Evening American for its fairness in the campaign.

His letter read:

"Kindly accept my thanks for the fair treatment accorded me by your worthy newspaper in my candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Attorney-general.

"Through your columns may I thank all my fellow citizens who supported my cause. My sense of obligation for the faith they have shown in me and my candidacy leads me to pledge that I shall wage a vigorous and winning campaign for Attorney-General."

Harvard Scans Zoo Behavior

Harvard students, who study nearly everything else, may now study the behavior of animals—a miniature zoo having been brought to light today in the psychology department on the top floor of Boylston Hall.

In this zoo are 200 rats, 13 cats and kittens, a pair of squirrels, 40 salamanders and a pair of monkeys.

A very inanimate tiger is also present in the tiny zoo, but inasmuch as she is stuffed and genetically out of competition, his behavior has little interest to the students.

Robart Off for Maine

School Committeeman Ralph W. Robart departed for Naples, Me., today to take a short rest before starting on the campaign for election to sheriff of Middlesex county.

Babson Calls New Deal Claims 'Hocus-Pocus'

Claims of the New Dealers "are largely hocus-pocus" and the Brain Trust apparently is a vote-getting machine, Roger W. Babson, Wellesley Hills economist, charged today at a luncheon of the Economic Club at the Chamber of Commerce.

"The protection of the conservative interests of this country," said Babson, "lies not in legislation, elections or primaries, but rather in fearlessly telling the people of this country that the claims of the New Dealers are largely hocus-pocus."

Grouping his arraignment of the New Dealers under a title, "Five Brain Trust Fallacies," Babson declared that the New Deal is wrong in trying to increase wages for labor and at the same time seeking a reduction or elimination of dividends on invested capital, because everyone is a wage worker and everyone a capitalist.

"Monetary inflation," he continued, "is just a phase of common highway robbery, and every class suffers thereby, especially wage workers dependent upon fixed salaries.

"Under inflation, prices always go up higher and faster than wages. The only people who profit under inflation are speculators in debt, and these are the men that are now back of the inflationary group in Congress.

"Business interests of the country should teach these simple economic truths. By so doing, they not only save themselves but perform a real service to the nation as a whole.

"Apparently the Brain Trust is employed to help the administration get votes. The people now need a Brain Trust to help them get food, clothing and shelter."

EVERETT FOLK HURLED FROM BEDS BY CRASH

Occupants of a two-story house in Everett thought a tornado had hit the place early today when they were hurled from their beds as a madly racing stolen car crashed into the structure, partly ripping it from its foundations.

Plaster rained down from the ceilings, chairs and tables were swept over and even the covers knocked from the kitchen stove. And the wonder of it all was that the two alleged occupants of the stolen machine escaped with slight injuries.

The men leaped from the wreckage and ran, but police were in hot pursuit. The pair taken into custody gave the names of Thomas Martin, 23, of Houghton place Charlestown, and Edward Bullard 31, of Russell street, also Charlestown.

They faced charges of stealing the machine in Malden district court later in the day. According to police, the car, a brand new machine, was owned by Mrs. Sarah Kinane of Centre street, Lynn.

What preceded the spectacular crash was a chase that was an dangerous as it was thrilling.

The machine was parked in front of the Kinane home when the thieves allegedly jumped in and sped away. The alarm was given almost instantly, and police in Everett took it up.

At a wild pace, estimated by pursuing police as sometimes reaching 75 miles an hour, the car hurtled through Everett square, missing by a hair several persons who were getting off a street car. Police cars came speeding after it.

At Chelsea and Ferry streets the racing machine made a sharp and disastrous turn. It shot like a shell into the house it wrecked.

The dwelling is owned and occupied by Michael di Gregorio. He said that damage was about $1000.

GIRL IN DOPE RUSE HUNTED

Believed to be a dope-pedlar a young, well-dressed woman was being sought by police today, after she had succeeded in duping two Lynn physicians into giving her prescriptions for morphine.

According to police the woman went to the office of Dr William G. Ward, of Essex street, Lynn, and gave her name as Evelyn Hillmon of New York, asked for morphine to relieve her suffering.

Dr. Ward gave her a prescription for a half-dozen tablets, but later became suspicious of her story. A check-up with one physician revealed that she had also obtained a morphine prescription from Dr Albert H. Covner, of Broad street, Lynn.

Mayor to Probe ERA Women Aid

Investigation was underway today by Mayor Mansfield of charges by City Councillor Clement A. Norton, Hyde Park, that of 11,681 persons listed on the local PWA and ERA payrolls, only 800 were women, Norton said.

"There are many women in Boston supporting families, supporting their parents now out of work. They might be given a little better deal."

O.O. McIntyre
NEW YORK
DAY BY DAY

New York, Sept. 25—Jimmy Walker has settled down to the life of a country-side Englishsquire. Before crossing the channel he spent a year seeking health in the south of France. The climate was too hot, too enervating. So he and his wife went to visit his mother-in-law in a thatched roof cottage in Surrey.

O. O. McIntyre

He reversed the mother-in-law-seems-to-stay-a-day-remaining-a-year gag by remaining permanently himself. Returning friends say he's a happy husband. There are a half dozen dogs, a brick-walled garden where Jimmy assures visitors he is raising pansies in a big way. He jogs to the village in a dog cart.

Walker and his wife rise early, never later than 7, and take their dogs for a tramp through the Dorking hills. His cigarette rations have been cut to four a day, one after each meal and one before retiring. He has gained weight, lost an annoying cough and his cheeks are almost ruddy.

They do not go in for night life. Now and then a play, the Savoy afterward but never late hours. If callers remain later than 10, the former mayor stifles yawns. And then tells quite frankly if he remains up after 10 he cannot rise early. And he loves early rising now. Imagine!

Bryant Park has cataracted into a mid-town eyesore again, topsy turvy with debris of eternal tearing down and building up. Every now and then in the zeal of a civic urge it is smoothed out and becomes presentable. But for a few weeks only and there is another waste—and who cares? —of the taxpayers' money. So on without end.

One of Harlem's affluent citizens is Sneeze, an alert ebony-black "boy" nearing 50. Sneeze is on call as a singer of chanteys at private parties. He can thump a piano and yowl the night long and be fresh as the daisy at dawn. He affects immaculate white suits that suggest a stick of licorice in a bowl of ice cream. He has some for likely every celebrity in New York, saved his money, which often runs as high as $50 a night, and can retire when he wishes.

Vignette of the times: She is at a counter in a department store in the 34th street area. Standing all day and enduring the subway rushes. For three years her husband, always delicate, has been unemployment. "I'm only too happy," she said, "I'm well and glad to share a monthly salary that equals his former daily pay. And it's fulfilling a marriage vow."

Every subway and elevated station at home-going time these days has its quota of jobless husbands meeting wives who have shouldered the family burden. Many husbands are there with the children, freshly scrubbed and shining a welcome. The evening meal has been prepared and household duties finished. And in the reversal the new breadwinner gets the comforts and fluttery attentions the husband once received. It's a theme for a Kathleen Norris novel.

Cole Porter may not go back to the cloister of his French chateaux where for a number of years he has turned out the swaying tunes and lively lyrics for many hit musical shows in New York and London. He is remaining in Manhattan over the winter. The devalued dollar, of course, caused the decision. Porter is the Peru, Ind., jerkin whose life has been the dream fulfillment of almost every boy in a country town—travel, hobnobbing with the great and seeing one's name in electric lights and social columns in the world capitals.

Chinatown is reputed the wickedest for many moons—running wide open. Tiny streets that wander like home-coming drunks are filled every night. Gambling, opium dens and sinister bagnios flourish as in the days of Chuck Connors and Nigger Mike's. The cause: Lack of funds to salvage souls from the muck. Recently Rose Livingston, "Angel of Chinatown" for 30 years, confessed she was destitute. She has rescued thousands of girls from white slavers, who set their traps in Chinatown and on Broadway. Restaurants in the quarter, desolated for months, are filled again. Music sounds from many cellars.

The celebrity hunt at Grace Moore's movie opening the other week revealed at least one perfect dud. As my taxi drew near the straining crowd, an outrider jumped on the running board, looked in and yelled. "No one in here!"

2 GIRLS FOUND IN DEATH PACT

Participating in an alleged suicide pact, two young Roxbury women were found lying unconscious on the sidewalk at Kendall street, Roxbury, early today.

At the City hospital they remained unconscious. They told officials they had taken poison because life had been going against them and they feared being separated.

The women, on the danger list at the hospital, are Mrs. Dorothy M. Elliott, 18, of Shawmut avenue, and Miss Frances Beatty, 18, of Windsor street, both of Roxbury.

MULHERN FLAYS NEW GAS RATES

Vigorous protest against the new rates filed by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company was made by former Senator Joseph J. Mulhern, who called upon Governor Ely and Mayor Mansfield to appear before the department of public utilities and demand rejection of the proposed schedule, he said:

"This action violates, of course, all rules of fair play, and once more demonstrates the dismal unfitness of the present department of public utilities to serve the people."

Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser — Win $50 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone wins the award. News tips mean money.

MAYBE YOU CAN'T WEAR knickers or a rubber bathing suit, you will still enjoy Gowns by Roberta . . . Maybe you don't like gin, you will however get drunk with color, glitter, glamor of Shadows in Silver . . . Maybe the connection between you and Mother Earth is firmly and comfortably established (as they say in the golf ads), you will play a better game after seeing Odette Myrtle in her rollicking, easy-breezy modern indovations . . . Maybe you don't like Royalty except in a piker game, you will adore little Princess Tamara who sings "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" . . .

All the town turned out last evening for the opening of this New York sensation . . . we glimpse a couple of charming debutantes from the North Shore with a brother and a cousin, tall, Junonesque Hilda Ayer, daughter of the Freddy Ayer's, and Ruth Patton, her cousin, daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel and Mrs. George S. Patton, Jr. Miss Ayer wore a slim black velvet sheath with cap sleeves lined with silver cloth . . . Miss Patton was in a gingham print silk with red background . . .

MAYBE SPINACH WOULD HELP

And immediately a line forms behind me 'ere I've started my sandwich to munch
I say to myself, "Let them stand there—I'll just take my time," I repeat.
But I bolt down my sandwich and coffee and meekly surrender my seat.
I'm never at ease with my landlord; my banker chills me to the bone,
Even though I have paid up my rent in advance and I've not asked my bank for a loan.
I see a policeman approaching now, watch me walk past him full sail.
But, instead, I get red and embarrassed; you would think I had just broken jail
The trouble with me, as I see it, is that I never stand up for my rights;
I'm always the last in the street car or bus; I'm the last one in line at the fights.
I may be the first at the box office, for to me to be late is a sin,
But, no matter how early I get there, I'm always the last to get in.
With my friends I'm the life of the party, and at home I'm a Simon Legree;
I'm a demon on wheels with folks that I know, but with strangers I'm meek as can be.

M. G. C. Harris.

But considering the shape the world's getting in, it shouldn't be very long until people start bragging about being misfits.

Connie Smythe Kills Bruins With Kindness; Sarazen's Concession

Harvard Varsity Midget Braves Teeter on Brink
Baker Closes Books

By AUSTEN LAKE

IT IS A SHORT MEMORY THAT does not recall last winter's hockey brawl between Art Ross and his Bruins on the one side and Connie Smythe and his Toronto Maple Leafs on the other; how they breathed flame and cinders across the Garden ice and slurred each other becomingly in the papers. It was something of an all time high for slander.

Austen Lake

Yet in New York on Saturday, when it came to a showdown on the price the Bruins would have to pay the Boston Garden this winter and an arbitration committee was formed to settle the figure, it was this same Connie Smythe who became the Bruins' best friend and rammed favorable terms down the open throat of the Garden's delegate, Col. John Hammond.

In fact, through Smythe's sanity, professional hockey was saved for Boston, and the Bruins won almost everything they held sacred in the rent quarrel with their landlord. Which means a fair percentage agreement, on a sliding scale, that gives both sides a chance to make a little profit.

This is amusing. Because, coming from an old Porista like Connie Smythe, who led his troops in a Holy War against the Bruins last season, it amounts to heaping coals of fire on his old enemy's head.

There are gentle thoughts in Art Ross' head toward his old foe this morning. But I'll wager, when the hockey season arrives, Smythe will sit asnarling on one side of the ice and Ross agrowling on the other.

It is too beautiful a fend to ruin by acts of kindness done in a careless moment.

WHEN GENE SARAZEN, GOLF'S FOREMOST egotist, says "Ky Laffoon is the greatest golfer that ever lived," that is the highest altitude in praise.

Yet Sarazen, who has often stated that he, himself, was supreme in the art of flogging the tiny white missile with the spaget-ti-shafted mallet, has written that to Freddy Corcoran, the State handicapper.

Think of it! Since June in tournament competition around the country, Laffoon, who has just won the New England Open with a record score of 275, has scored 26 rounds of 69 or under.

He is, and Sarazen concurs, the golfing sensation of the age!

Laffoon's great grandmother was a fullblooded Cherokee Indian, and in his features there is a strong trace of the redskin. He weighs a scant 155 pounds and has about the slenderest wrists in golf. Yet he bangs terrific wood shots that fly with the accuracy of a rifle shot.

AS BILLY PARQUETTE STANDS IN HIS football armor under the lee of Harvard's ivy mantelled stadium, he looks no larger than a standard-sized jockey. Fact is that Bill weighs only 138 pounds, and is the smallest player who has ever worn the varsity crimson.

It is Coach Eddie Casey's intention to keep him as a reserve back during the coming fall, using him sparingly in the No. 3 position for the sake of his punting, passing and running threat.

The sight of the midget, who looks more like a mascot than a gridiron bruiser, wriggling his hips through the Harvard teams, is eye filling.

Saturday he cracked the line for a six-yard gain and the only touchdown of the scrimmage, knifing his way through a gap before it winked shut.

There have been many famous small men in major college football, though few so tiny as Parquette. Casey himself weighed less than 160 in his prime, Albie Booth scaled 145, and Harry Stuhldreher 155.

Among the lightest was Louis Bush, the Mass State gamecock who twice led the country as high scorer, and who weighed, like Billy, 138.

THE NEVER-NEVER LAND OF BASEBALL is that region below fourth place known as the second division. Clubs that finish in that area are written off as busts. Today, despite the splendid legup that Brooklyn has given the Braves over the Pirates, here are the same Pirates blowing hot on their heels.

Brooklyn generously let the Braves beat them 15 in 20 games, and then turned around and mangled the Pirates 16 in 22. By skillful mathematics, that means Brooklyn, all alone, helped the Braves to a 20-game advantage over Pittsburgh.

Yet the Pirates are a half game, or only .003, from swinging the Braves out of fourth place. Only bright spot is that the Braves today are in Brooklyn, calling on their good, kind friends, the Dodgers.

THE YANKEES, DESPITE FINISHING second in the league race, have played to almost as many customers as in their record year, well beyond the 1,200,000 mark . . . Yale is not trying to conceal the fact that it is "pointing" for the Columbia game on October 6. For the first time in its history the Bulldog is bringing itself to concert pitch for an opening football game. Reason is that by beating Columbia, Rose Bowl victor last January 1, the Blue will instantly assume a character in its own eyes and those of the gridiron world . . . The Russians, now holding an "international" chess tournament at Leningrad, were careful to invite only second rate players from other countries, and few of those. They want their people to believe that the Soviet monopolizes the best chess brains.

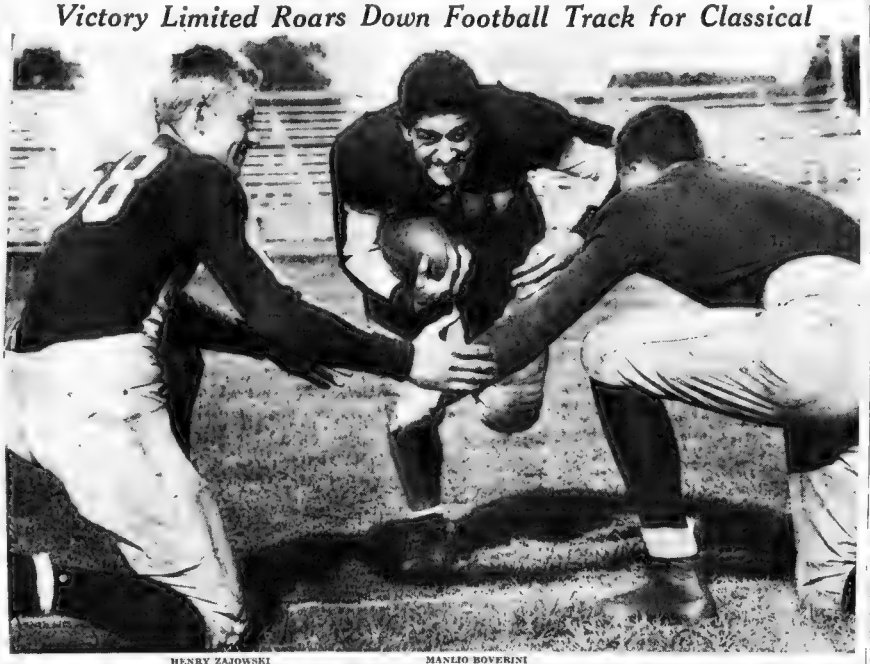
ROGER BAKER, THE ARCHANGEL of the Northeastern Baseball League, had mortgages or owned seven of the clubs in the circuit. Yet when the pennant was awarded, it went to Lowell, the only team under separate ownership.

Baker, in his first experience as a league magnate, lost $15,-000. Yet he did not mind that so much as suddenly finding that, instead of a Class A organization, as the league was registered in the beginning, it was mysteriously demoted to a Class B group by minor league powers.

Baker is considering suit, on the basis that he paid Class A fees and must now sell his players at a Class B scale.

Victory Limited Roars Down Football Track for Classical



HENRY ZAJOWSKI

MANLIO BOVERINI

Why the smile on the face of Zajowski, right tackle of Lynn Classical? It's because he chuckles at the thought of the damage his captain fullback, Boverini, will do on enemy lines in the school football grind. Here Zajowski and a pal pose while Boverini roars ahead, to get used to going through the line low and hard. He weighs 200 pounds, and is fast. Manlio is one of the biggest and strongest school backs to perform in recent years. A great college grid career awaits him a few seasons hence. (Picture by Boston American Staff Photographer.)

BOTH YACHTS FLY PROTEST FLAGS AT START

After bounding over the starting line with a 40-second advantage, the challenger rounded the turn at 12.51.37.

Rainbow came around at 12.52.45, giving the challenger an advantage in time at the mark of a minute, 8 seconds.

LEAD IS SLIGHT

Endeavour was estimated to be about two and a half miles from the 20-mile mark at 1.53, apparently somewhat closer than Rainbow. They still were about two miles apart, although now on the same tack.

Endeavour had held more closely to the course on the reach for the first turn of the 3-mile triangular course, sailing to keep the defender under her lee at the start.

In an effort to get by to windward, Vanderbilt took Rainbow wide of the course and finally set a spinnaker to run down the mark, but maneuvers now lost more ground as his sails failed to draw properly.

Their elapsed times for the first third of the course were: Endeavour 1.13.37, Rainbow 1.12.45.

40 SECONDS AT START

Both were main, Genoa jobs and stay sails as the race started.

The British boat was across 40 seconds ahead of Rainbow for the best start she has made in the series.

After running Rainbow well back of the line, Sopwith suddenly brought Endeavour around, broke out his Genoa and had it drawing before the defender had her canvas going. She hit the line almost on the second while Rainbow's crew still was struggling to set her genoa.

Both doused their staysails as soon as they had their genoas sheeted home.

FLIES PROTEST FLAG

Rainbow was observed to run up a red protest flag

Sopwith huffed at 12.06 forcing Vanderbilt to follow him.

The British boat was holding its lead and carrying Rainbow high on the course, giving Vanderbilt no opportunity to get by to windward.

It was Vanderbilt's attempt to drive Rainbow past Endeavour Saturday which led to Sopwith's protest.

Endeavour appeared to be slowly widening her lead at 12.20. The breeze, which was moderating, had headed the yachts slightly, drawing around toward the south.

ENDEAVOUR IN LEAD

Rainbow has worked considerably to weather of the challenger at 12.30, although high on her course, and she broke out a spinnaker.

Endeavour held a lead there of about a half minute as they hit the 5-mile mark about two miles away.

LOSES PART OF LEAD

Going around the turn with a minute, 8 seconds advantage, Endeavour lost some of her way as her crew handled the Genoa. Rainbow came around and went off on a starboard tack for the 10-mile beat to windward.

At 12.57 she went back to the port tack. Endeavour's crew still was struggling with her headsails.

Once she had her sails drawing Sopwith held Endeavour on a starboard tack. Apparently he had no intention of attempting to keep Rainbow covered on the beat.

SIMMONS DEAL 'BRAIN STORM'; NATS HERE

By Joe Cashman

A most ridiculous rumor beat the Red Sox home today

It was a story from a Chicago newspaper that the White Sox would send Al Simmons to the Reds in exchange for Rick Ferrell, Fritz Ostermueller and "Dusty" Cooke, before another season rolled around.

Sure, the Pale Hose would gladly send Simmons here for the best catcher and the most promising young southpaw pitcher in the American League, and Cooke thrown in for good measure.

But the Red Sox wouldn't consider letting either Ferrell or Ostermueller go alone for him.

This yarn would have been the height of silliness a month ago. Today it is doubly daffy, what with Mel Almada and "Skinny" Graham recently called from the minors, playing a bang-up game in the outfield

"There's utterly no foundation for the story," declared Eddie Collins, general manager, today in discussing the dispatch.

"I am willing to pay my tribute to the worth of Simmons as a player, now or any time, but there has been no talk, not even any intimation about such a transaction," added Collins, "and you can label it as a brain storm."

If you are looking for a furnished or unfurnished home or apartment or room let Barbara Holmes do your worrying for you. You'll find her every day at R. H. White Co. from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Boverini May Lead Lynn C. To State Championship

By Bill Connell

A 200-pound fullback who packs a sprinter's speed heads the Lynn Classical parade to football fame this fall. Manlio Boverini, boy, captain of this Green W... that may roll over its 10 strong foes.

Physically one of the best equipped teams of the season, Classical neatly is tagged a "giant" wave. For of all its thirty-two only Captain Boverini and Henry back Johnny Hayden are veterans. Two other boys have '33 letters. A green wave, indeed.

Here's Bill Joyce's coach-gram on his team in brief: to season very raw timber in a couple of weeks to the point where it can stand the gaff of nine wild afternoons. Chelsea fell last Saturday. Ahead lie Gloucester, Beverly, Haverhill, Revere, Nashua, N. H., Peabody, Malden, Salem and Lynn English.

Bill Joyce, keen and experienced football teacher, and Art Rogers, his chief assistant, have much hard work planned.

"It's difficult to predict anything about a squad of this type," says Joyce. "They have the physique, and are in good condition. Overcoming the handicap of inexperience is a big job.

"Because of this we don't have any title dreams. We do hope to win a majority of our games, and such an achievement would make the season a success, "considering the caliber of the teams we'll meet."

A notable item regarding the physique of these eleven would mention their stature. They're tall and rangy and hard. And a bit faster than average, because no chunky, roly poly youngsters are on that first team.

The linemen are poushing up on the usual assignments. Adolph Dancewicz drops back from right end to punt. A very fine kicker, too. In the backfield St. Angelo and Hayden pass, Hayden is an able kicker, and all four are fairly good running backs.

Hayden, the bespeckled field general while Boverini stands out at plunging. Despite his size he's also shifty. Both he and Hayden are great pass receivers.

Next Champs, Says Mickey

By Associated Press

Detroit, Sept. 25—Mickey Cochrane, who gave his longshot Detroit Tigers a hustling ride down the stretch from July to September to beat out the favored Yanks in the American League pennant race, is hoping and thinking today that Detroit will be the next world's champion.

"Now we can play out the string without any mental hazards," he said as he gathered in his strategy board for the world series. "We will go into the series ready to fight either the Giants or the Cardinals to the last out.

"I hope and think we will be the next world champions."

HIKER JOY HURT SERIOUSLY IN AUTO CRASH

Joy sustained a laceration of the scalp, possible fractures of both wrists, an injured pelvis, and an injured right knee when the machine he was driving collided head-on with another car in Hamilton, N. Y. Physicians said he would recover but would not be able to coach again this year.

"Hiker" Joy

Joy was returning from a visit to Andy Kerr, Colgate coach, at the time of the accident.

Joy was assistant to the late Major Cavanaugh at Boston College and Fordham and came to Canisius last year. His first product won five games, tied one and lost one.

Tony Comerford, former Boston College end, who has been assisting Joy this fall will take charge of the squad for the rest of the season.

Joy's wife and two children live in Boston. He is 46 years old.

'God Gave Me a Good Team, Breaks and Schoolboy Rowe', Says Mickey

By Universal Service

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 25—"God gave me a good team, the breaks, and 'Schoolboy' Rowe."

Thus, tersely, Manager Mickey Cochrane explained how he and the Detroit Tigers brought the motor capital its first pennant since 1909.

Manager Cochrane and his team were celebrating the pennant victory at an exclusive party when a Universal Service correspondent interviewed Cochrane. Mickey went on:

"There is not much to say about how we won the pennant, because one can't put his finger on just what it was that won the pennant for us."

The orchestra began playing "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." The Tigers at the party started to roll-lick and sing. They all joined in the chorus, Cochrane declared.

"You see, it's just like that. The boys are young they like to play ball, and, most of all, they like to win. They're full of pep and spirit, you can't keep them down.

"When I came to the Tigers last winter, I knew Mr. Navin had a good club with any number of potential stars.

"I had no idea we would win the pennant. There were too many problems to overcome.

"Who could, for instance, predict that Hank Greenberg would play first base and hit like he has this year? Last year he had been a green rookie with a lot of possibilities but little experience.

"Take Jo-Jo White, our center fielder. Look how he came through, batting like a veteran and a running fool when it came to stealing bases.

"When you ask me how we won the pennant, you are asking me what made Hank Greenberg and Jo-Jo White such stars.

"There are some things, though, that can be explained. Last winter when I signed to manage the Tigers, I had an idea I knew what was keeping them down. I can't say this theory of mine turned the whole trick, but it worked.

"I knew the Tigers, good as they were—and certainly better than a second division club—were playing with a second division complex. That is, they did not believe they could be winners. The idea frightened them.

"Right at the start I made it clear that I didn't want anything from the boys except a lot of fight. I knew they were good mechanically, but if they could be got to fighting for each game and playing the best they knew how, I was sure I wouldn't have to worry about where we finished."

A shout went up as Charlie Gehringer, star second baseman, was toasted by his teammates as "the best second baseman of the generation—no, the best second baseman ever."

Cochrane smiled and said:

"That's pretty true, Charlie's batting and playing has kept us up there. No one will ever know how much he influenced the other players.

"When we started to win, and when Schoolboy Rowe started his streak, I was pretty sure we would be up there when it was over."

The Tigers have three who have battled for the diamond title in the National league, Manager Cochrane, Fred Marberry and Goslin.

And several clubs have won out ... [illegible] ... veterans ...

The St. Louis Cardinals in 1926 had only two, Billy Southworth and Grover Cleveland Alexander. The Braves of '14 had the same number, Johnny Evers and Jean Dubuc.

If experience is to win the coming series, the Tigers will more than hold their own with the Giants, even though the latter are world champions.

EAGLES AHEAD OF LAST YEAR DESPITE RAIN

By Walter Kiley

In spite of being badly handicapped by rain, Boston College looks to be farther advanced than last year's fine team at the same period, McKenney will proceed slowly, with the idea of reaching the peak in the latter stages of the campaign, a method which worked to perfection in 1933 when the Eagles upset Holy Cross in the finale.

McKenney's lastest cut reduced the squad from 70 to 54. Nine more were to be dropped after today's scrimmage with the freshman squad.

The players retained are: centers Moore, O'Brien, Keough, Toomey and Fitzgerald; guards, Donohue, Coubig, Zaitz, Pasenny, DeRubeis, Killion, Yacovitch and Duffy; tackles, Gilligan, Cahillegan, Dominick, Keaney, Gilman, Cowhig, Owens and Graham; ends Furbush, Cash, Anderson, O'Brien, O'Hayre, Mahoney, Ryan, Walsh, Sanford and O'Connell; quarterbacks, Flaherty, Moynihan, Fenlon, Maiocca and McCarthy; No 1 backs, Avery, J. Curran, Dergais, Hamburg, Gallant and Quigley; No 2 backs, Brennan, Caroselli, Huxley, Pagliuces and Conlon; No. 3 backs, R Curran, Driscoll, Federal, Tobin, Shannon, Good and Luppi.

McKenney has three backfield units which may or may not be shifted before Saturday's opener. Present plans call for Paul Flaherty to quarterback the unit of Tom Brennan, Pat Avery and Bob Curran. The No. 2 unit is Billy Fenlon, quarterback, Joe Curran and Jake Driscoll, halfbacks, and Carl Caroselli, Everett sophomore, fullback. The No. 3 group is Bernie Moynihan, quarterback, Bill Huxley and Al Tottilini, sophomore halfbacks, and Attilio Fidenzi, a sophomore, fullback.

Hago Harrington's dramatic efforts in "Gold in the Hills," an old time melodrama, produced twice last spring, resulted in a net profit of $350, which was employed to pay for 40 warm, rain proof reefer coats which will keep the Eagles comfortable when the chill winds begin to howl around the Heights.

New skin tight pants, the latest thing in football apparel and the lightest yet to be constructed, will be worn by the B. C. backs and ends when they face St. Anselm's Saturday.

Terriers Toss Light Team at Brown

Coach Pat Hanlet's newest football product is almost ready for exhibition. In four days he will take his Boston University eleven to Providence to open its season against Brown

The lineup seemed fairly well settled today. It looks as though the ends will be Frank Hughes and Dick Van Iderstine, Fred Nichols and Irving Gross seem to have the inside berths; the guards probably will be Captain George Abodeely and Homer Beauregard, and Sam Lourie will be at center. Ray Maddocks will call the signals, George Thomson and Warren McNamara will be the halfbacks, and George Timson will be at fullback.

It is the lightest eleven the Terriers have ever had. The line will average 173 pounds, and the backfield 156.

Redskins Tilt With Malden Tomorrow

The exhibition game between the Boston Redskins and Warren McGuirk's team, to be played at Pearl Street Stadium, Malden, tomorrow night, will be the determining factor in selecting the Redskins' lineup which is to start against the Dodgers at Brooklyn next Sunday afternoon.

McGuirk has a strong lineup which should give the Redskins a fair test.

The backfield has Al Weston and Paddy Creedon of Boston College, Eddie Saivi of Niagara, and Bud Ganna, former Medford High all-scholastic

In the line there will be Dick Hickey of Villanova, Ted Etchings of Brown, Chris Sarno of Fordham, Art Center of Tufts, Bill McEachern of St. Bonaventure and Jerry Maloney of Dartmouth.

The Redskins have been concentrating on aerials in recent workouts, and Dietz will stress this department tomorrow. It is a plan of campaign that he is particularly anxious to have in good working order against Benny Friedman's Dodgers.

Lincoln Mutuels

For Monday, September 24.

First total (1-3-7)	$106.78
Second total (1-2-3-5-7)	198.18
Third total (7)	283.98

In Receiver's Hands

Steve Hokuf, All-America last year at Nebraska, now an end for the Boston Redskins, not only leaps but gathers in a high one. Steve is one of the best forward pass receivers, a vicious charger and a deadly tackle. The Redskins play an exhibition in Malden tomorrow night.

Harvard Holds First Secret Practice

Behind locked gates and guarded walls, Harvard's varsity grid squad holds its first secret session of the season this afternoon. None other than the 42 varsity players and the coaching staff were to be admitted

This morning Casey posted a permanent varsity roster of 42 players, after adding to the squad Mal McTernan, a hefty 170 pound halfback, and Bobby Little, 180 center. Three varsity players were sent to the jayvees for further experience. McTernan and Little were members of the great freshman outfit of a year ago. They were overlooked in the crush of early practice sessions but proved their class in the varsity-junior varsity scrimmages during the week.

The varsity is now stabilized for at least a month, since the only probable change before the Holy Cross game, Oct. 20 will be the reporting of Craig Woodruff, Johnny Adzigian, Tommy Bilodeau and Braman Gibbs, the Oriental section of the squad, on Oct. 1.

The Crimson's running flashes, Chet Litman and Fergy Locke, who have been taking things rather easy while Casey experimented with his sophomore prospects, are due to swing into action a bit more frequently this week

YALE PRACTICE BEHIND GATES

By International News Service

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 25—Secret drill and scrimmage behind edged gates and a board fence marked the first football practice on Yale's home fields here Monday. About 40 additional players were admitted to th squad of 50, which last week went through preliminary practice at Gales Ferry, crew training quarters north of New London, under Raymond "Ducky" Pond, new Eli head coach

Harry Combs, varsity end, and Kim Whitehead, outstanding backfield candidate, suffered minor injuries on Monday's secret scrimmage, but their hurts will not keep them from preparing for the opening game against the Columbia Lions a week from Saturday.

SALEK WINNER IN SLUGFEST

Salem, Sept. 25—Steve Salek, of Lowell, a regular of Battling Nelson, had a well-earned victory to his credit today over Pancho Villa of Waterville, Me.

Salek was down twice in the second round and took terrific punishment in the third and fourth but came back to knock Vila down three times and gain the award.

CARDS ONLY TWO GAMES BACK OF GIANTS

By Joe Cashman

While the Detroit Tigers were clinching the American League pennant, the St. Louis Cardinals were tightening up the National League flag struggle with a victory over the Chicago Cubs, as the pace-setting New York Giants were idle

The Terrymen's lead in the senior circuit is now only two games.

Still, the Giants have no more to worry about than they did 24 hours ago. They can't be beaten unless they lose one of their four remaining games, even if the Cardinals ... [illegible] ... second go-round to win the six they have still to play.

The standings today:

	W	L	Pct.	GB	GTP
New York	93	56	.874	—	4
St. Louis	90	57	.612	2	6

The Giants open a two-game series with the seventh place Phillies in New York today, after which they load until Saturday, when they begin a two-game series with the Dodgers at the Ebbets Grounds.

The Cards play the Pirates today and tomorrow. They finish up in four contests with the last-place Reds. All six tilts are listed for St. Louis. Should rain wash out any of the Cards' tilts, it would be fatal as if they were lost on the field.

The Tigers have but their first American League pennant in 25 years without playing. Our Red Sox put the Bengals in when Johnny Merens, rookie southpaw, shut out the second-place New York Yankees.

The standing today:

	W	L	Pct.	GB	GTP
Detroit	97	57	.851	—	5
New York	91	58	.611	6	5

So if the Bengals should lose their last five games and the Yanks should grab off five in a row, the Cochrane crew would still w[illegible] ... The final standing in that event would be.

	W	L	Pct.
Detroit	97	57	.630
New York	96	58	.623

It's interesting, to ... [illegible] ... Tigers are bound to finish the race with as many victories as the National League winner, even if they don't chalk up another win.

The new American League champions already have turned in 97 triumphs, and the best the Giants or Cards can do is tie that mark if they finish up without another setback.

IT TAKES MORE THAN VATS AND KETTLES TO BREW AN ALE LIKE CROFT

There's very little equipment in the Croft Brewery that couldn't be duplicated by anyone who wanted a plant just like this. But almost any other brewmaster will tell you that you can't brew a fine ale overnight with even the finest equipment in the world. And when you drink your next glass of Croft, perhaps you'll realize that a background of forty years' brewing experience can be mighty important to the man with a glass in his hand.

ROSEPATH BEST WAGERING PROPOSITION AT ROCKINGHAM

cap a few days back that this handicapper cannot go past him in selecting the probable winner of the $2,500 added Stafford the Six-Furlong classic handicap here tomorrow afternoon.

In taking the Hal Price Headley youngster to capture the rich prize home out by Lou Smith and his associates of the New Hampshire Breeders' Association, the writer is fully aware that he will be meeting older opponents and will be spotting them large chunks of weight on the scale.

For the day's best bet, the writer is going to string along with Rose Path, a hangup third in her last outing. The sweepster filly will be meeting practically the same lot that finished in back of her in that 1½ race at Laconia only a month ago in order to earn brackets.

ARAKAY, WEEDIDIT, LADY ADAIR

Mirror Park ... Wee Gee ... Mr. Gardner ... Chasing Power ... Weedidit ... Rich Reason ... Nine Bushes ... Lady Adair ... Long Count ...

ARAKAY was the victim of poor racing luck when she finished fourth behind John Gilpin a few days back. Joe Edward's charge was in the thick of everything during the backlane in that affair, but she was forced to drop far out of contention in order to secure racing room. Once clear Arakay closed with a fire burst of speed and just missed getting up to head WEEDIDIT for third money. The latter ran a corking race in that outing after breaking slowly and figures to offer the more dangerous contention. LADY ADAIR'S last three races were very good.

Rosepath, Caterer, Calgary Kap

SECOND RACE—$500 claiming, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs.

Caterer ... Rosepath ... Calgary Kap ... Mad Trixter ... Bryn Athyn ...

ROSEPATH is clearly the class of this ordinary lot. CATERER made up a world of ground after a slow beginning to finish only 2 lengths behind the top one last out. CALGARY KAY, an old fellow with a smashing no. of races behind, experience little difficulty in savaging the short end.

Dark Tyrant, Triolet, Balancer

THIRD RACE—$500, claiming, three-year-olds and up, 5½ furlongs.

Capt. Jerry ... Dark Tyrant ... Spencer ... Buster Boy ...

DARK TYRANT has the necessary speed to handle a field of this sort. The Sir Gallahad's last two efforts were over a distance of ground and in a previous effort, he pleased to Unchanging in a swifter run 5½ furlong dash. TRIOLET is evidently the class of the race, but I doubt if she has enough speed to keep up with this distance. BALANCER was the warmest sort of tip this afternoon and if sent back tomorrow he may share in the spoils.

MORHART, KAI-FINN, UPPERCUT

FOURTH RACE—$500 claiming, three-year-olds and up, five furlongs.

Fashion Show ... Morhart ... Upper Cut ... Cosmo Gregg ...

MORHART has been a bit over his head in recent efforts, and has had scant chance to display his true wares. Earlier in the meeting he displayed a corking effort to place to KAI-FINN, being beaten only a half length for money. The latter has had quite a bit of it lately and may not be quite as he was then. UPPERCUT, a winner at the meeting, looks next best.

FRAIDY CAT, PROJECTILE, UNIVERSE

Dark Tyrant ... Fraidy Cat ... Mad Trixter ... Projectile ... Universe ... Big Beau ...

BIG BEAU has been away from the races since his effort in the Rennington Handicap but the clockers report him right smart. If right, the son of Supremus should encounter little difficulty in handling the lot. MAD TRUMP has evidently gone a long ways back in the betting, but his last race entitles hi nto the next best rating. SLIPPER KING displayed great improvement last out and under the feather impost of 95 pounds, the infinite colt may amaze the short ends.

IMMUNE, UNCHANGING, BEETLE

SEVENTH RACE—$600, claiming, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs.

Overhanger ... Merrie Marie ... Lassie Lassie ... Sweet Sue ...

This event shapes up strictly a two-horse affair between IMMUNE and UNCHANGING, but I'm going to tempt fate by striping along with the former. The J. Y Christmas thoroughbred has race well in all fo his starts over this course and will be well suited by the distance. UNCHANGING is from the Genesee stable and was a victor in his only outing over this course. BEETLE displayed marked improvement in his last outing.

MOROCCO, ON SIR, BOOCAP

Darling ... Boocap ... Mark Time ... Irrigo Bud ...

MOROCCO has been dropped back among his own kind and should stand a world of beating in this affair. ON SIR, a winner of his last two starts, figures to offer the contention. BOOCAP shapes up next best.

Roof Caves in on Fiermonte's Dream Ring Fame

Wilson Picks Four Winners; Other Three in Money

New England race fans who follow the selections which appear daily in the Boston Evening American reaped a harvest yesterday afternoon at Rockingham.

Dave Wilson, the East's premier handicapper and regular staff member of the American, picked four on the nose out of a seven race card. In the other three races his selections finished in the money.

His winning bangtails included Wild Pigeon, $4.30 to the first; Redlight, $7.70, in the third; On Sir, $3.80, in the sixth, and Hasty Peter, $13.80, in the seventh.

While Wilson was having a big day, the American Race Consensus, compiled from the list of 14 leading handicappers, scored again. Four firsts, Wild Pigeon, Happy Boot, Jesting and On Sir, with the other selections all in the money was the record.

Brown Coach Is Wary of Opener With B. U.

Providence, Sept. 25—DeOrmond Tuss McLaughry, Brown University's capable head coach, believes the opening game this Saturday with the Pat Hanley-coached Boston University eleven will determine Brown's gridiron fate for the coming year.

McLaughry believes it will be the hardest kind of a test for the Bruin pupils when stepped down from Boston that Hanley will field a well coached & heavy and fast team with plenty of incentive to win.

A victory for Boston University would practically make its season a success.

KARASAN INJURED

Brown has looked woefully weak in the backfield during the training season. Lacking reserves, hard hit by graduation and with several of his best prospects dropping out of college, McLaughry is faced with a difficult task.

His lone ray of sunshine thus far has been Karasan returning to form of last year which has been out of the game for a year. Left at the best blocking back the Scot has had in years.

Brown's gridiron fortunes have been rumbling in cyclone starting in 1926 when McLaughry took charge, his first team, the famed 'Iron Men' went down in gridiron history. In 1928 and 1930 the teams suffered but the loss of one game each while in 1932 Jack team lost one and tied one.

The odd season teams haven't been so fortunate If history repeats itself, Brown is in for a banner season against such foes as Holy Cross, Colgate, Yale, Harvard and Springfield.

Captain Bill Karaban is banged up with numerous bruises, and the quarterbacking has been lacking in steady generalship. Larry Stanhope, a Worcester product, has been shifted from the line and is putting up a fine battle for a backfield berth.

TRY NEW ATTACK

The Brown line is faster much heavier and backed with better reserve than last season's forward wall. Dutch Lear Mal Bai, Hatchet-face Carpenter, all regulars, have added weight during the off season and are now flanked with lusty teammates.

McLaughry is trying out a new line of attack this season. For the past eight years his triple-wing back formation has raised no little trouble with the opposition but last season the vaulting teams seemed to have a way of stopping it before it was properly under way.

During the past three weeks the Bruins have been experimenting with a modified Notre Dame shift and a mixture of the plays that Andy Kerr has so ably downed the opposition that gets in the way of the Colgate Red-Raiders.

Brundage Back, Report Tomorrow

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—Avery Brundage, President of the American Olympic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union, returned from Germany today and announced he would submit a report tomorrow night.

Whether American will participate in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin hinges on the outcome of the committee takes, Brundage said.

NOTRE DAME IN NEED OF PUNTER

By International News Service

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 25—Speed is what Coach Dick Hanley is determined to develop in the Northwestern football team

So he has ordered that Frank Hill, track mentor, to take over the squad for five minutes at the start of each practice session.

The varsity came out of the freshman scrimmage without injurs for its week of drill before meeting Marquette Saturday

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 25—In spite of the fact that the Gophers have been hounding the Minnesota football squad coach Bernie Bierman expects to have the Golden Gophers in shape for the opening game Saturday with North Dakota Aggies. Rain held the squad indoors again yesterday. Injuries have placed two more men, Bob Tenner and Sheldon Beise, on the crippled list.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 25 (INS)—Bob Zuppke had a hard practice session outlined for the Illinois varsity today in preparation for the opening game Saturday against Bradley. Freshmen scrimmaged against the reserves yesterday and Zuppke said he expects a tough battle from Bradley's veteran team.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 25—Wisconsin's forward wall had undergone several changes today as Coach Clarence Spears searched for a stronger and faster line. In the drill yesterday he gave Joe Pascetti, a guard, at tackle; Dick Luminsky, guard, at center; Wally Otte, fullback at end and Verne Peterson, half back, at guard.

Layavette, Ind., Sept 25—Noble Kizer is sparing nothing in whipping his Purdue varsity into shape for the Rice Owls one week from Saturday. Demanding mid-season form of his varsity against Rice Kizer opened the week's drill yesterday with an intensive scrimmage in which the veteran backs Jim Carter and Duane Purvis shone with their running and passing.

PERRY OFFERED $100,000 FOR MOVIE SERIES

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, Sept. 25—The name of Frederick Perry, world's premier tennis player, was linked with new talk of professionalism today after his third consecutive victory in the Pacific southwest championship.

While the prominent British Davis cup star was non-committal on the subject he needs only to sign his name to a motion picture contract to get $100,000 for a series of tennis shorts such as Bobby Jones made, it was learned.

When Perry came here for the tournament he made it plainly understood he wanted a chance to interpret. It was a feature role he was seeking, however.

He was definitely convinced at that time that the offer of a hundred thousand dollar deal had not been made.

Talk of George L and Stoefen, the world's double champions, turning professionals, were put to rest today, at least for the time being. As a team, the pair had been made an offer to join a troupe for a series of exhibitions this winter. They refused.

Should Perry accept the moving picture offer he undoubtedly also would join the ranks of the barnstorming pros to pick up at least half as much more than the studio is willing to pay. Ellsworth Vines cleared around $60,000 in his first year as a pro.

Malden to Start Soccer This Fall

Malden high will have a soccer team this year for the first time and has arranged a schedule for eight games. David Beattie is coaching the squad and home games will be played at Cradock Park, Malden. The schedule opens Sept. 28 with Watertown high at Malden.

Other games are Oct. 2, Malden at Medford; Oct. 5, Malden at Belmont; Oct. 10, Lexington at Malden; Oct. 19, Malden at Watertown; Oct. 23, Medford at Malden; Oct. 26, Belmont at Malden, and Oct. 31 Malden at Lexington.

$3750 Paid for Colt Recovery

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 25 (AP)—Top price at the first day's auction held in connection with the grand circuit trotting races here was $3750 paid by J J and E. T Lisle, of Plainfield, N J, for the yearling colt by Guy Abbey out of Mar on Scott.

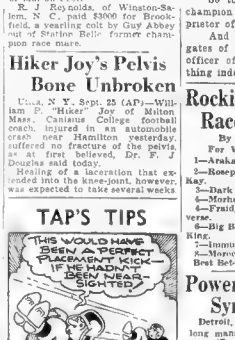
Ray Reynolds, of Winston-Salem, N C., paid $3000 for Brookfield, a yearling colt by Guy Abbey out of Native Belle, former champion race mare.

Hiker Joy's Pelvis Bone Unbroken

Utica, N Y., Sept. 25 (AP)—William P. "Hiker" Joy of Milton Mass., Canisius College football coach, injured in an automobile crash near Hamilton yesterday, suffered no fracture of the pelvis, as at first believed, Dr. F. J Douglas said today.

Reports of a laceration that extended into the knee-joint, however, was expected to take several weeks.

TAP'S TIPS

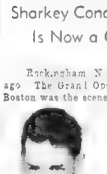


He Didn't Choose to Fight

And So Eddie Record, While Squire, Who Sharkey Conqueror, Chose to Fight, Lolls Is Now a Cop in Luxury

By DAVE EGAN

Rockingham N H, Sept 25. It must have been nine years ago The Grand Opera House on Washington st., near Dover, in Boston was the scene. It was fight night, and the little converted theater was packed from ring to rafters.



EDDIE RECORD

In one corner was a little known heavyweight who had lately graduated from your good Uncle Samuel's navy, a moody, temperamental giant who had changed his name from Battling Skee to Jack Sharkey.

In the other corner was a square-jawed, blond haired, good-looking boy, whose name was Eddie Record, and whose home town was Nashua, N H

"Just another ham-billy," the wiseenheimers thought, for Sharkey was being brought along with great care by the plump gentleman known as Johnny Buckley, who is probably the greatest of living—

So the square-jawed blond-haired, good-looking boy stepped into that dreary theater, where they held the fights on the stage, and proceeded to give the former sailor a severe spanking.

"I Didn't Like Blood," Says Eddie

Well, the sailor won the return bout, and Eddie Record went back to New Hampshire and walked right out of the headlines.

"I didn't like blood," he explains to you today. "I didn't like to mark up other fighters. I didn't like the cruelty that must be in the make-up of any good fighter.

"Perhaps I would have been a great fighter, as many people have told me, but I'm satisfied. I'm square with my own mind, and my own conscience."

Today, Squire Sharkey is a stylish suburbanite, with one of the grandest homes in the nicest section of Chestnut Hill. He had enough granite in his soul to come back from his first defeat at the ample hands of Record and win the decision in a return bout.

He had an ugly snarl that expressed itself in his fists, as he tore through Ol' Har' Wills, and quiet Jimmy Maloney. Finally, he became a national figure, and a champion of the world, and something that approached a millionaire

He had fought everybody who would consent to fight him, including Jack Dempsey, and after Primo Carnera knocked him out, he retired in a graceful manner, to assume the ownership of a prosperous tavern in poddnership with his manager, Johnny Buckley.

It boasts of the largest bar in these here now United States of America, and Squire Sharkey goes along in a suave, polished manner, shaking hands with his paying guests and piling up money by the day.

O, It's Easy to Get It if You Got It

Now I do not want to paint the Squire as a grasping, hard figure, for he is a friend. But the canvas should portray a former sailor who reached out and got plenty of the goods of this world in his possession.

And I should also give an equal portrayal of Eddie Record, who played his part. There was no lack of courage in Record. There was too much sensitiveness to human pain and suffering. There was too much of the milk of human kindness.

So today Sharkey is a great man, as retired heavyweight champion of the world, owner of a suburban home, and co-proprietor of the most prosperous tavern in the town of Boston.

And Eddie Record is just as contented, as he guards the gates of the press-box here every day, and works as a reserve officer of the Nashua police. This makes life a very strange thing indeed. But a beautiful thing, too.

RUMOR BARUCH RETIREMENT IS ENDED

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Best rumor in weeks is that which had Bernard M. Baruch and Hyde Paul [illegible]

President [illegible] ways [illegible] means of [illegible] the stock market out of the dumps. Mr. Baruch, as well-informed observer saw the [illegible] Exchange Act, as partly responsible. Now it is said that a administration leaders, [illegible] cerned by the drifting movement of share prices, are afraid that irresponsible rumor might precipitate a break. So in order to make their story sound the more plausible, they have brought Mr. Baruch out of retirement and put him in charge of a constructive movement to get prices back to a higher level. Most impressive angle of the rumor is the [illegible] capable of supplying the leadership.

B. M. Baruch

Most market analysts will tell questioners that all they ask of the market is that it keep moving. At this particular stage it does not matter whether the direction is up or down. But hesitation here would be suicidal. Because it would look like distribution. An immediate reaction down to 87 or an upswing to around 93 are the two alternatives that impress the bulls. We agree, and would not be inclined to lighten long positions unless prices vacillate between a point comparable to 89-91 for the 20 industrials. The ideal action would be the reaction first with activity and market breadth obviously contracting.

Shorts: B. H. Cram, Detroit automotive authority, [illegible] that in his opinion [illegible] high priced cars sales is still down [illegible] Ephemeris of both an economic and socialistic nature are seen as responsible . . . Next year, he points out, no maker will produce cars exclusively in what is known as the high priced bracket . . . The offering [illegible] special bulletin on the subject to those who subscribe to its service.

The rather lively action of some merchandise shares as contrasted with the rest of the list is ample proof that retail sales are holding up well. We understand that the increased buying power in the farmer particularly is beginning to manifest itself in heavier purchases. In the meantime production has been sharply curtailed and unless some unexpected blow is going to be dealt sentiment over the next few weeks it is our opinion that the settlement of the textile strike is the signal for accelerating the fall upturn.

Bits o' Gossip: The outlook for the radio business is considered improved this fall . . . Traditional early winter stock group should be watched for signs of accumulation . . . General activity in textiles likely to follow in many observers . . . The government is furnishing a good backlog of orders . . . And will be slowed by the strike it will not surprise us if there is a good pickup in the textile trade through October . . . Tobacco shares are stimulated at present by indications that cigarette manufacture will reach new high records in 1934.

The bond market is not without its important point n considering the future of tobacco securities. Despite the increase in cigarette production we are inclined to agree with the views bulletin of the 1st New England Financial Service it points out that the increase in leaf tobacco in cutting down will and balancing rises in cigarette prices are unlikely because manufacturers are to lose in volume. Consequently the sale of high-price low yield tobacco bonds is suggested . . . And we still find it hard to warm up to the equities of the smokers' group.

Annual Dividend on Rolls-Royce

Business Opinion Believed Turning Toward Sales Tax

[illegible] Hearst newspapers, is discernible throughout the country.

[illegible] reforms of accounting [illegible] business, including corporate income, corporate profits, corporate tax bases and rates, etc.

"If these taxes are collected by the federal government, it is dealing with the largest corporations, most of which have developed accurate accounting systems. If these taxes, particularly the sales taxes, are collected by the states, the small business deal with the retailers, who in many cases have not developed the systems of accounting that it is practical for state governments to exact returns from each of them, to say nothing of proper auditing.

"There is a solution close at hand, afforded by the example of Canada. Prior to formation of the Dominion of Canada, each of the Canadian provinces imposed tariffs, but when the Dominion was organized, 80 years ago, they gave up to the Dominion government the right to impose tariffs on condition that a portion of the revenues would be given to the provinces for their support."

In regard to [illegible] reform, it was stated:

"We also recommended the people of the United States should recognize that Federal, State and local governments are all servants of the people, and for each particular purpose the people should employ that servant who can best perform the duty.

"Specifically, we recommend the Federal government be requested to impose a manufacturers' sales tax covering every manufactured article, except foods, of which a large proportion of the proceeds would be returned to those States which will repeal their own taxing laws on such sales."

BOSTON STOCKS ARE MIXED

Trading was quiet, but many issues crept higher cancelling early losses.

Edison was up 2 while American Telephone, New Haven and United Fruit moved fractional advances.

NOTES SIGNS OF BELATED FALL UPTURN

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Sept. 25—Business statistics last week began to show signs of the belated seasonal rise which is to be expected soon. The curve of [illegible] activity has fallen to the lowest rate since April, 1933. It is crazy down to where it was when Roosevelt was inaugurated. But this is partly due to the strike, which is now ended. The drought played a part, and that also is history.

So we find steel production up more than usual for the season, automobile sales have staged a little spurt, general retail and wholesale business has gained, as measured by dollar sales. Commodity prices at wholesale averaged slightly higher.

The outstanding developments, however, are politics and sentimental. I would sum them up as follows:

(1) The recognized failure of New Deal expedients to function as planned.

NRA, as a broad general scheme stabilizing industry and stimulating business, has broken down. Price fixing and labor policies are in chaos. Unemployment despite the season has increased. Johnson is practically out. Enforcement of the codes does not exist in many cases.

AAA is in confusion and trying desperately new schemes. Even the farmers are dissatisfied with the way the processing taxes have worked, and the author of the Bankhead bill wants it repealed.

(2) The courts are showing signs of more backbone in upholding the Constitution. During the week, decisions in Maryland, Kansas and Oklahoma have gone against the administration. They are not Supreme Court decisions, but are strong showing for the courts.

In this connection, the decision of a government official against spending certain public money in making the spectacular "Forest Trail" in the western drouth section, is to be noted.

(3) Business men show signs of shaking up and organizing for defense. The Federal Reserve advisory council demanded a return to economic liberalism. Others have planned a national organization to study NRA. The railways organized a national [illegible] for the defense and development of their business.

(4) On the other hand there are signs that many people still want to go on with radical schemes for social reform, especially when these involve passing around other peoples money. Schemes for putting the government into business and paying the bills with paper issued by a "great central bank" are very much alive. Political prospects now concede a "radical" Congress.

Shares Lower in Quiet Curb Trading

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 25—The Curb market continued to work gradually lower today in dull trading. All but a few of the list with the exception of specialties, there were losses up to a point with the oil and gold issues showing particular targets. Trading continued quiet.

While there was no large volume of stocks offered, brokers reported a scarcity of supporting orders for the day's issues. American Gas, Wright Hargreaves, Teck Hughes, Lake Shore Mines, Cities Service, and Electric Bond & Share, all of which sold lower after showing, in some instances, signs of stability in the first half hour of trading.

With few exceptions petroleum shares extended the losses of Monday another 1 to 2 points, with Gulf Oil and Creole Petroleum having the largest turnover. International Petroleum, however, was among a few other issues showing minor fractional gains.

SHARE PRICES MOVE BRISKLY HIGHER

New York, Sept. 25—Optimism over President Roosevelt's coming radio speech and reports that the Federal Reserve Board margin requirement would be liberal, brought a sharp spurt in the industrial list today with gains running to more than 2 points.

All sections of the list shared in the upturn.

Utility shares were in particular demand under the influence of consolidated Gas, which rose more than a point. The demand for the utilities was apparently predicated on the belief that the administration would take a more favorable stand on the industry.

U. S. Steel became active during the final hour, to push ahead more than a point. Other steels moved in unison.

RAIL EARNINGS

United States Smelting staged a vigorous recovery, converting its forenoon loss of more than 2 points into an equally large gain. Commodity shares recovered in sympathy.

Commodity markets strengthened in sympathy with stocks, wheat after getting down more than a cent a bushel rallied sharply to finish higher. Cotton was practically unchanged after dipping more than 50 cents a bale at the start.

FALL BUYING

Comments on business news, while a little more favorable than in recent weeks, were still of a cautious character. In some quarters it was felt that the fall merchandising upturn would have to be reflected in heavy industry before the authenticity of the current improvement could be admitted. ●

The results of the Treasury's September-October refunding program to date are viewed by banking circles as quite satisfactory.

With the closing of the books on the Exchange of the called Fourth Liberty 4¼s for 2½ per cent four-year notes, it was estimated that about $596,000,000 of the retiring $1,260,000,000 Liberties had been turned in for the short-term obligations. In addition, it was announced, some $248,000,000 of the called series had been traded for the new 3¼ per cent bonds.

"All other," or commercial loans, as totaled in the federal reserve board's condition statement member banks in 91 cities reporting on Sept. 19, showed a further increase of $11,000,000. The banks disclosed decreases during the month of $38,000,000 in net demand deposits, $18,000,000 in time deposits, $40,000,000 in reserve balances with federal reserve banks, $67,000,000 in loans on securities and $22,000,000 in total loans and investment. At the same time the banks' holdings of U. S. government securities increased $56,000,000.

Margin Rules to Be Released Tonight

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—Federal Reserve officials disclosed today that stock market margin regulations had been completed except for a few controversial points and had been placed in the hands of the 12 reserve banks for simultaneous nation-wide release when these issues were settled.

They said definitely the rules would not be made public before the close of the financial markets today, but indicated a possibility they might be ready some time tonight.

May Name French New Haven Head

New York, Sept. 25 (INS)—Edward S. French, president Boston & Maine Railroad, is in line to be named head of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, it was learned in informed sources today.

This disclosure came on the eve of the New Haven directors' meeting tomorrow, at which formal action will be taken on the resignation of John Pelley, ousted chief head the recently formed Association of American Railroads.

Stock Market Time Table

10-11—Shares worked moderately lower in the first hour dealings. Metals led the weak tone. U. S. Smelting which opened with a 2 point loss recovered about half. Trading was quiet with sales running 110,000 shares.

11-12—Prices stiffened in the second hour. Merchandisers were showing gains. Trading quiet, with transactions amounting to 200,000 shares.

12-1—Market turned steady in the late hour. Previous losses were wiped out and numerous issues showed point or better gains. Prices were highest of the rails steady. Trading very dull. Sales amounted to 390,000 shares.

2-3—Gains running from 1 to more than 3 marked dealings in the final hour. Volume increased on the rise. Metals and chemicals were strong. Other groups made good gains. Sales were estimated at 600,000 shares.

G. O. P. IN DRIVE TO OSTRACIZE ALONZO COOK

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Broad grins appeared at the State House today when word came that posters are being distributed by Republicans urging election of all successful candidates for state office nominations—excepting Alonzo B. Cook.

Cook, perennial burr on the trousers of the Massachusetts Republicans, defeated for nomination for state auditor, the G. O. P. handpicked candidate, Mrs. Elizabeth West Pigeon and apparently the party has determined to attempt again to ostracize him.

Today Robert M. Washburn, Republican candidate for election to the United States Senate, opened his campaign against Senator David I. Walsh and charged that Walsh betrayed the late President Wilson in voting against the United States' entry into the League of Nations.

In a statement, Washburn, who recently denounced the New Deal as "pure Socialism," after summing up the record of the senior senator, characterized Walsh as a "clever politician," whose "political course has been utterly colorless."

Taking heart from the sizeable vote cast against Walsh in the Democratic primary, Washburn jibed at his opponent. He pictured him as one in the midst of "Indians on the war path, their first purpose to annex each others' scalps with which to adorn their tepees."

The speaker pointed out that for the first time in Walsh's career, the Democratic party can be charged with responsibility. He pictured the senator, on a turned tide, "upon the political cinder path in a one-piece bathing suit."

ABOUT FACES By ART MOGER

What's in a name?

Plenty! An excellent chance for you to win a share of the $25 is offered weekly by the Boston Evening American to followers of the "About Faces" series by Art Moger. If you know the names of your favorite Hollywood stars as appearing in their favorite roles as your favorite theaters.

Today for example we urge you to visit the famous Modern Theater, where the screen offers the hit musical picture of the year, "Dames" and "The Defense Rests," Fox News and selected short subjects round out an excellent bill. It is at this popular theater that you will find the correct answers to today's "About Faces" drawing.

To solve this puzzle series identify correctly the Hollywood stars that are drawn. Beneath each drawing is a block of squares. These squares equal the number of letters in the names of these stars. Use the letter clues as guides.

Mail your entire week's solutions to The About Faces Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass. Every Friday a list of cash prize winners will be announced.

Remember a new series starts every Monday and ends every Saturday.

By entering NOW you stand an excellent opportunity to win. First prize, $5; second prize, $3; third prize, $3, and 15 prizes of a crisp new one-dollar bill, each.

What do you really know "About Faces"?

KING LEVINSKY SUED BY BRIDE

By Universal Service

Chicago, Sept. 25—Her dream of love was ended by the ham-like fists of Kingfish Levinsky, his fandancing bride of five weeks, Roxanne Carmine, declared here in suing the colorful Chicago heavyweight for divorce.

Roxanne agreed with many of the King's ring opponents that he packs a terrific wallop for, she said, she was on the receiving end as recently as last Saturday. On that day, according to her complaint, the Kingfish gave her a resounding slap on the cheek, shoved her into a corner and then swung one which landed her on the floor.

The young bride also mentioned other women in the King's life.

3 Bids and Proposals

PROPOSAL

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS—Department of Mental Diseases.—National Industrial Recovery Project Mass. State No. 38-P-W-1, Docket No. 960.—Notice to Contractors.—Sealed proposals for Electric Wiring to Central Power plant at the Boston State Hospital, Dorchester Center, Mass., will be received by the Department of Mental Diseases at Room 447, State House, Boston, until 2 o'clock P. M. standard time, Tuesday, October 9, 1934, and at that time and place will be publicly opened and read. Bids must be made upon the Department's prescribed special form of contract for projects financed and constructed under the terms of National Industrial Recovery Act and Chapter 365 of the Acts of 1933, to which is attached and made a part thereof the Special Contract Provisions Revised April 15, 1934, of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works and the State Emergency Public Works Commission. Special attention of the bidders is called to the prescribed minimum wage rates of $1.20 per hour for skilled labor and $.80 per hour for unskilled labor, and to the special provisions as to semi-skilled labor.

Pursuant to Executive Order 6646, dated March 14, 1934, no bid will be considered unless it includes or is accompanied by a certificate issued in accordance with P.W.A. 61 revised March 19, 1934, duly executed by the bidder.

All bidders shall be required to file with their bids a properly executed certificate of workmen's compensation insurance issued by a company satisfactory to the State Commissioner of Insurance.

Plans, specifications and contract forms may be obtained at Room 315, Ford Building, 15 Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass., upon deposit of $150.00, the amount of which is to be refunded in the estimated sum of check but that of the successful bidders will be returned upon return of the plans and specifications. Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of the engineers, Kimball Company, Inc., 6 Beacon St., Boston, Massachusetts.

Bids must be accompanied by a properly certified check, or by a certificate of deposit issued by a responsible bank or trust company in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, payable to the order of the Massachusetts Treasurer and certificates will be returned after execution of the contract from deposit. A surety bond from an approved surety company will be required from the successful bidder for the amount not less than the full amount of the contract. The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals, or to accept any proposal deemed best for the Commonwealth, and no award can be made without the approval of the State Engineer, P.W.A. and of the State Emergency Public Works Commission.

The local registration office of the National Reemployment Service from which employee lists for this contract shall be obtained (as required in Article 7 of the Special Contract Provisions), in Massachusetts State Employment Service, 18 Rashua Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

DAUGHTERS OF VENUS By Robert Terry Shannon

SYNOPSIS

Madame Hubert, well known beauty expert, makes Juliet Rankin manager of her institute, believing the young girl's pulchritude will prove an asset and offset her own ugliness.

Tom O'Hara, former manager of the Hubert institute, objects to Juliet at first but he soon succumbs to her charm. Juliet is greatly attracted to O'Hara because of his resemblance to her dead sweetheart. Mrs. Gottlieb, a patient who had undergone a facial operation to hold her faithless husband's love, is expected to die because of her weak heart.

The reputation of the institute is at stake. Henning Mrs. Gottlieb call for her husband. Juliet summons him. At the sight of him, Mrs. Gottlieb vallies and, Madame Hubert is deeply grateful to Juliet. Dr. Yon Guerdon, the beauty specialist, expresses his love for Juliet . . . She is now inspecting the institute.

CHAPTER VII

Gerald McSpadden, in charge of cosmetic manufacturing, deep in the basement, smiled apologetically as he rubbed his hands with a towel.

He had been, when Juliet entered his glistening laboratory, mixing an experimental mass of some scented substance that looked like thick cream. His face had a basement look, and he viewed the world with slightly squinting eyes as though dreading what he might see.

He made a half-bow, extended his hand and said in a little, shy voice: "Mr. O'Hara has spoken to me about you in—in the highest terms, Miss Rankin."

LONG UNDERGROUND

"And Mr. O'Hara told me," lied Juliet enthusiastically, "that you were a marvelous chemist."

Sudden delight brightened McSpadden's eyes and he blinked rapidly with excitement.

"Did Mr. O'Hara actually say that?" he cried like a pleased child. "I've often wondered whether they liked my work or not—one never knows, does one?"

"How long," asked Juliet curiously, "have you been down here in the bowels of the earth—without knowing whether they liked your work or not?"

"Oh, in excess of five years," McSpadden told her. "But I can't complain as long as I get my pay-check, can I? And I'm not complaining, Miss Rankin—please understand that. No, indeed! The work's really facinating—but I'm afraid it would sound awfully technical if I tried to explain it to you. I once attempted to tell Madame Hubert about it—technically that is—but she seemed strangely confused and indifferent."

"Do you mean to tell me," asked Juliet, "that Madame Hubert doesn't know what is in these preparations that bear her name?"

"Nor Mr. O'Hara?"

"I'm sure Mr. O'Hara hasn't the slightest idea," confided McSpadden. "As a matter of fact, I myself am the only one who knows their exact composition. You see, this is my department."

CHEMIST DAFT

"But do you understand the effect of all these lotions on the various types of skins?" asked Juliet. Her amazement increasing. "Do you use guinea pigs in your experiments, or do you try the stuff on human females?"

McSpadden flushed slightly. "Oh, not guinea pigs, they wouldn't be suitable at all. Unfortunately—and I regret to say this—I've never applied the preparations to the human epidermis. It's all largely theoretical, you know."

The conversation left a swimming sensation in Juliet's brain. McSpadden, too, was a daft as Madame Hubert and O'Hara. The whole Institute was a gorgeous padded-cell upholstered in brocades and perfumes.

"Of course our cosmetics are highly meritorious," McSpadden reminded Juliet. "The success of the business proves it. Nothing so tremendous could be built on nostrums, could it?"

"Oh, absolutely not!" said Juliet, hastening to agree with this earnest little man. "But I'm afraid I haven't the brain to understand all your ferocious formulas and what not, Mr. McSpadden. Chemists are probably born and not made. I'm sure our products are harmless to man or beast and, probably the equal of anything on the market."

"I don't know how to thank you, Miss Rankin, for this appreciation," he stammered.

LOYAL TO O'HARA

"And furthermore," said Juliet, with a rush of new-found loyalty, "I'm going to tell Mr. O'Hara that we are doing marvelously down here, and see if I can't get your salary raised. It's men like you that make things hum, to be frank about it."

In all his drab life McSpadden had never dared dream that a creature so radiantly lovely as Juliet would look upon him with such approval and understanding.

"Don't bother Mr. O'Hara, please, about my salary," he said lamely. "It's quite sufficient. You see, he's such a busy man and so many people make demands on him. Everybody here—men and women alike—thinks he's wonderful. I don't suppose there's a manicurist or hairdresser in the place who isn't in love with him."

"How does he feel about them?" Juliet asked innocently.

"That I couldn't say," responded McSpadden. "You see, Mr. O'Hara has never taken me into his confidence."

The thought of a hundred trim and slim young girls with their burnished hair and silk-stockinged legs, and ripe lips concentrating their unrestrained desire upon the blue-eyed and biscd-haired O'Hara, swept over Juliet like a repelling tide, leaving her vaguely disappointed in the heart.

All at once—utterly without reason—she was assailed by an imperative urge to rush back to where O'Hara was. It was a thoroughly secret impulse, but it was sensed by McSpadden. Men, too, have their intuitions and his eye lost its sparkle.

"I'll be going now," Juliet said in a hurried voice.

"Instead of paying rent at the Ambassador, you may occupy Recovery Suite A on the top floor until you get a place of your own," it read. "The janitor will show you. Regards, H."

Quaint Figures in Cutwork Now

CUTWORK LINENS PATTERN 837

Here is something new in cutwork and something that will make charming accessories for the bedroom. These quaint figures, silhouetted by the cutwork itself, make choice pillows. A pastel-colored material can be laid underneath to bring out the design even more effectively. These quaint figures also make a dainty picture, lovely scarf, ends and—since there are a pair in a smaller size—other charming accessories. If you like you can use them as a decoration on a lampshade, too.

Pattern 837 comes to you with a transfer pattern of two figures 8½ inches, two figures 4½x5 inches; complete directions for doing cutwork; illustrations of all stitches used; suggestions for use of motifs and material requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

Congress Must Help Safety at Sea

As inquiry proceeds into the Morro Castle disaster, it becomes more and more evident that thorough revision of the admiralty laws will be an imperative duty of the next Congress.

Witnesses last week at the Department of Commerce hearings produced further evidence to indicate:

1—That neither crew nor passengers were properly instructed as to safety measures in the event of emergency.

One man, who had been a watchman on the Morro Castle, asserted that he knew nothing at all about the fire doors, which seem to have been neglected on the tragic date.

2—That when the fire was discovered late at night, panic and confusion contributed to the death toll. One witness testified:

"Passengers and crew were all mixed up, and very much excited."

3—That, under these circumstances, a number of passengers hurled themselves to immediate death in the ship's propellers by leaping over the rear deck rails while the Morro Castle was still in motion.

ASSUMING the accuracy of all this testimony—and none of it so far has been controverted—one conclusion becomes inescapable:

COMPULSORY BOAT DRILLS, for BOTH PASSENGERS AND CREWS, must be required by law upon every vessel which touches American ports.

Of course, fire drills of a kind are now the practice.

The Morro Castle had boat drills, but it has been testified that these drills were anything but rigorous, and members of the crew were inclined to shirk them. Moreover, such drills as were held did not include the passenger lists.

Nor is it difficult to find an explanation of these evident facts.

The Morro Castle was a new and highly modern ship, conforming structurally even to the requirements of the "Safety of Life at Sea" treaty which this country has not yet ratified.

The vessel's automatic and other fire protection devices were undoubtedly of the best obtainable.

But, as so often may be the case, too much reliance was placed upon "mechanical" safety, and a resultant false confidence led naturally to neglect of the human factors.

Consequently, when the deadly fire broke out, fire doors were not used; some of the crew apparently failed entirely to find their emergency stations; sleeping voyagers were trapped in their staterooms by the rapidly spreading flames; and those who were wakened had to shift for themselves.

The Federal Administration has declared already in favor of laws requiring that the "housing" of all ships be constructed solely of fireproof materials.

England is now considering, and is expected to enact, similar legislation.

But even if every ship can be wholly fireproofed, such an elementary safety measure as BOAT DRILLS for both passengers and crews will still remain necessary.

Fire is not the only ever-present hazard of sea travel. And the same discipline that will avert panic and prevent loss of life by fire at sea will also save human life in any other kind of shipwreck that may occur.

An Important Task

Newton D. Baker, chairman of the 1934 Mobilization for Human Needs, announces the appointment of five Massachusetts citizens—four of them from Boston—to a national committee charged with bringing to public attention present-day social conditions in American communities.

They are Allston Burr, director of the Family Welfare Society; James W. Farley, chairman of the Emergency Relief Drive; Louis E. Kirstein, chairman of the New England branch of the American Jewish Relief Committee; Joseph Lee, president of the Massachusetts Civic League, and Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College.

Theirs is an important assignment for on the 28th and 29th of this month they are to confer in Washington with representatives of other sections of the country on how depression-wrecked lives of men, women and children may best be rebuilt.

They will seek means of making organized welfare work more efficient.

The conferences are to be held at the instigation of President Roosevelt, who has placed the White House at the disposal of the committee. Of them much good is expected.

Merit Loses Out

Brown University's 170th academic year starts Wednesday. The big Rhode Island educational institution will admit the largest class in its history.

The incoming class could be still larger, but Brown retains its policy of limiting the freshman body to fewer than 400.

Dr. Bruce M. Bigelow, director of admissions, points out an odd new situation. Dr. Bigelow says:

"Competition for scholarship aid has probably never been keener than it is this year. The result of this condition is that many students who would ordinarily merit aid on the basis of both school records and financial need, have been refused scholarships."

We regret that merit loses out, in a few cases, even though it is plainly the fault of conditions, not of men.

Voice of Wisdom

President Sills of Bowdoin College spoke with the voice of wisdom when he told New England leaders at Poland Spring that

"Poor schools delay the return of a reasonable prosperity and jeopardize the coming generation."

Boston schools, under the able regime of Superintendent Patrick Campbell, can surely qualify for President Sills's praise. But it does not follow that we should fail to guard against introduction from outside sources of baneful ideas of economy that will sap our schools' effectiveness.

DIVORCING A GENTLEMAN

Divorcing a gentleman is really no trouble at all. Not in America. You don't have to worry about the evidence. He'll gracefully hand it to you on a silver salver, if you ask for it in a nice way and don't act piggish or demand TOO much alimony.

He'll pay your way to Reno or Paris, if he can afford it, arrange things with your lawyers, order your Pullman and even strap and check your trunks, kiss you good-bye at the station and tip the porter to look after you. A GENTLEMAN (American make) to the last!

Helen Rowland

Or if you prefer a Mexican divorce (which isn't much good in most of our states, but is less expensive), you can get it without the least effort or publicity—and there'll be no come-back. Not from a "gentleman."

Apparently, a Mexican divorce IS a divorce, only when you can trust your ex-mate to take it in the right spirit and not make a fuss about it. It holds good, only as long as both of you are complacent and neither minds when, whom or if the other marries again.

Naturally, some husbands, even gentlemen, DO object to taking care of the spaniels or the Pekes and keeping the houseplants trimmed and watered, while their wives are in Nevada waiting to accuse them of "cruelty" and divulge their "brutalities" to a sympathetic judge.

It isn't fair to ask a busy man to come home every night and walk a lap-dog around the block, while you are playing roulette and making pleasant new acquaintances, miles and miles away. You should take Toto and Ming Su with you. There are limits even to a gentleman's patience when it comes to playing nursemaid to an ex-wife's lap-dog.

At the present time, our American divorce laws are the funniest and most confusing in the world. In no other country on earth can you be married, divorced and a bigamist all at the same time, just by crossing a couple of state lines.

SHOULD BE SURE

That makes it all the more important that a woman should make sure that she is divorcing a gentleman—one who really has her happiness at heart—before she goes in for any of these "near-divorces."

Listen, World!

I wonder if this thing will get you as it got me?

It was in a dingy office down in a commission district. You know the kind of an office, dark little coop on a level with the sidewalk. Fly - blown windows, dust and straw blowing. Dirty brown varnish, grimy old tiles, battered desks piled high with yellowing papers, a torn calendar—a spittoon.

Elsie Robinson

And, in the midst of the dinginess—sunk in its great tide—a little, faded man, with filmy eyes through which all ambition or curiosity had faded long since.

A little old failure of a man whose age lay upon him without pride or dignity. A hopeless soul within a hopeless house—so I thought. Yet even as I turned away my eye caught something which made me pause.

Above some cluttered shelves half hidden in the shadows of the ceiling—there hung a great bird.

An eagle—stuffed. The feathers were moth eaten and one glass eye was gone. But still the dead wings opened to majestic span—the great neck jutted forward with the fighter's lunge—the talons clutched with strength which once tore lambs apart.

That huge and kingly bird in that small, fly-blown room! That great, free thing, hung stuffed within a hole where freedom never moved!

The little man saw my amazement. Timidly his glance wavered up with mine toward the dead bird, and something stirred beneath his face, like a small spark in ashes long since cold.

"I shot that bird," he said at last as though he spoke to himself.

I went out wondering. Sometime, before age turned his eyes to dusty glass and left him stuffed within that dingy room, THAT MAN HAD HUNTED EAGLES!

Somewhere within him leaped a lust for hills—for lonely trails—and dangerous mountain tops!

And somewhere still there stayed the memory of the wind—the scent of pines—the joy of a free camp beneath the stars.

And yet—I thought he was a plain, gray man.

I wonder what we'd find if we could look within the souls of those we think so old, so hopeless and so dull. Perhaps—an eagle!

Wife Too Brainy -:- -:- By Winifred Black

"Yes," said the woman who has just come back from Reno. "Yes, that's exactly what he said to me, just before I started to get the divorce.

Winifred Black

"He said, 'I'm tired of looking up—my neck aches and I want to look down.' We were talking about the poor little ignorant girl he was sort of infatuated with at the moment.

"'Well,' I answered him, 'I don't blame you, I know just how you feel. I'm tired of looking down, so I think its time for us both to make a change.'

"Oh, yes, he'd been doing some rather unforgivable things and he was not agreeable at home any more.

"I might have stood his infidelity and his light-headed running after every new face he saw, but I just could not stand any feeling of contempt for him.

HER SIDE OF STORY

"I wanted to respect my husband. I wanted to look up to him and feel that he was more intelligent and stronger in every way than I was.

"But he wasn't. He wasn't so very intelligent and he never could make up his mind about anything.

"I thought I'd have to make the best of it. He gave me a beautiful home and plenty of money and we had a lot of nice friends who would be shocked if we separated.

"I thought it really wasn't right for me to judge him harshly. He was what he was and how could I blame him for that?

"So I'd just be a martyr and do my best with a bad bargain. And then, all at once, he said that about how his neck ached from looking up and how he would love to look down in peace and comfort.

"And all at once I knew that he was just as miserable with me as I was with him.

"So I just trotted off to Reno and now it's all right.

RESENT SUPERIORITY

"Oh, I'll be lonesome sometimes and blue. It isn't easy to tear up the very foundations of your life, but anyhow I'm glad it's over.

"He won't have to crane his neck and look up to me any more and I won't have to bend my neck and look down at him."

And when the woman from Reno had gone, I got to thinking about how strange it is that men love to look down and women love to look up.

I don't believe any marriage can be happy when a woman is braver and more honest and more generous and more intelligent than her husband—not if he suspects it.

No decent man can bear to be patronized by his wife, but a lot of very decent women simply love to be patronized by their husbands.

It's all sort of queer and puzzling, isn't it?

THE WEARY MAN

As I was walking down the way
A man whose eyes were dulled by care
Came slowly up to me to say:
"I'm tired of all I have to bear!
I'm tired of struggling all day long!
I'm tired of having tasks to do!
I'm tired of all the petty wrong
That seems my pathway to pursue!

"I'm tired of never getting on;
Of debts I never fully pay!
Now five and forty years are gone
And I'm no farther on the way.
I'm tired of rising with the dawn
The self-same hopeless grind to face;
I'm tired of all I look upon,
So bleak and dull and commonplace."

"I know the feeling," I replied.
"I, too, have wearied of the grind
And thought I'd like to step aside
A month or two of rest to find;
But maybe she who stays at home
Is just as weary as are you
And wishes she afar could roam
In search of rest and pleasures new.

"She may be tired of climbing stairs
And making beds and dusting things.
She may be weary of the cares
Which always every morning brings.
She may be tired of duties small
From which you never let her free,
And yet for you she braves them all!"
"I never thought of that," said he.

Stars and Stripes

All cadets at West Point are to be taught how to fly. By long-sustained tradition, they will continue to fly at—not from—our enemies.

A Chicago shoemaker bet his last dollar on a horse and lost it. Doesn't that prove the old saying, "A shoemaker should stick to his last?"

By Edwin C. Hill

"Men must work and women must weep." But women laugh, too, nowadays. Here's a big gayly-decked book, "Laughing Their Way," by Martha Bensley Bruere and Mary Ritter Beard—a fine anthology of feminine humor in America.

While Mrs. Bruere's husband, Robert Bruere, was working—taking the brunt of the preliminary negotiations trying to fend off the textile strike—Mrs. Bruere and Mrs. Beard were rounding up a book which is unique in its showing of the rise and range of women's humor, and incidentally in its revelation of humor, as a reflex of the new cultural freedom of women.

AN AMUSING STORY

Both authors are deep in such matters, but they have let their story tell itself—a clear portrayal of widening horizons. Sitting on the terrace of Mrs. Bruere's charming home at Sneden's Landing, overlooking the Hudson, I heard the amusing story of how the book came about.

"We were dining at the Beards," she said. "Our husbands agreed that women, on occasion, were humorous in their conversation, and even witty, at times, but that when they tried to write humor they could never get it over. This started a warm argument in which Mrs. Beard and I warmly opposed that idea. It was a serial argument and, finally, as an ultimatum, we told our husbands we would write a book and prove it. So we did."

Mrs. Beard is the wife of Charles Beard, the historian. Both she and Mrs. Bruere are the authors of many books and magazine articles, and Mrs. Bruere is also an accomplished artist. The book is a startling reminder of the changes that have come about in the world of women—although, again, the authors do not labor this point.

Certainly, even in our own brief time, it is a far cry from Aunt Samantha at the World's Fair, to Dorothy Parker. They go away back to Frances Berry Whitcher and her "Widow Bedott," and, here indeed, the book is a peep show revealing other days.

This earlier humor was "cabined, confined and circumscribed" in the narrower feminine limits of the home and the church of those days, as were the women themselves in their stays and martingales. But how they did break loose as the decades rolled by.

STILL PONDERING

It was Bergson—wasn't it?—who set up the theory that humor doesn't flow from a high to a low potential, but that it is a flash between equals: that this flash never occurs between master and man.

They're still pondering this, and the returns aren't all in yet, but reading this fascinating anthology, it seems to me women began to do more than kidding and wise-cracking as they got to a point where they could call their soul their own. The suffrage movement, as the years grew show, opened up some rich veins of feminine humor.

One might make quite a plausible case for the view that the new humor of women is a variant or a marker of the changed human status. The authors have diligently surrounded their subjects, and they marshal a gallant parade of brilliant women in support of the argument with their husbands. The jury finds for Mesdames Bruere and Beard.

A curious silence surrounds that feeble little man whose resolute purpose has caused more trouble to the British government than anything since the American colonies decided to go it alone. What, indeed, has become of Mahatma Gandhi?

What has become of the Indian Republic he was so ardent to create? Has British diplomacy, so subtle in playing faction against faction, been too much, after all, for the astounding little prophet?

This amazing political and religious teacher, who commands more followers today than any prophet that has arisen since Mohammed spread Islam with fire and sword, was not always a skinny, toothless, shaven little skeleton in a loin cloth.

He's 65 now, but in his early days he studied law in London, wore top hats and frock coats, studied dancing, French and the violin.

RENOUNCED KING

It was in 1919 that he renounced the king, demanded complete independence for India, and devoted himself to poverty, humility and self-denial. The British imprisoned him many times, but the problem was worse with Gandhi in jail than out of it.

In his prison at Poona he occupied two plain rooms. He slept under the stars, rising at four in the morning. He prayed and walked about. His right hand troubled him and he learned to write with his left.

Most of his day he spun yarn, turning out from one hundred to five hundred yards a day. His bitterest warfare is against the machine and the machine age. He preaches that humanity must go back to the soil and the simple life to survive. He reads enormously. He knows the Bible through and through, and the Mohammedan Koran. When Mrs. Gandhi visited him in prison, he had lost so much of his meagre flesh that she cried out:

"Why, I can see your bones!"

He replied: "But I am feeling very well."

Control of Munitions

IF the United States Government wants to go into any business—asks Richard Washburn Child in an article in the Hearst newspapers—why should it not be the munitions business?

The investigation of this trade now being conducted at Washington by a Senate Committee has brought forth a number of astounding facts.

It has been shown that armament makers, interested only in their profits, have operated as an international ring, forming amongst themselves a kind of super-government, not only employing more or less secret agents to promote their sales but in some instances enlisting even the aid of diplomatists and other dignitaries in order to procure remunerative orders from different countries.

Here is one example of what this practice leads to, valuable American patents have been pooled abroad among manufacturers and used to produce offensive weapons for any Power anywhere in the world.

Why should this be permitted?

Why should any private concern be engaged in the business of making war machines which under international laws only governments may use?

And why, particularly, should private companies be allowed to sell American secrets to foreign nations which may use our own inventions against us?

ON several occasions lately, the Federal Government has indicated a disposition to enter the business field.

Much has been said, and said with clarity and with force, against mere meddlesomeness of this character.

Indeed, for a government to do so becomes injurious to the government itself.

Such interference with the everyday economic order impairs existing and socially useful private industries; it reduces employment and depletes the sources of taxation on which government has to depend; it chills the very spirit of productive enterprising.

Such ventures, in times like these, are not and cannot be recovery measures. They retard, instead of accelerating, the return of prosperity.

But nobody will seriously contend that the manufacture of munitions is to be regarded in the same light as the making of shoes or mattresses—both of them undertakings in which some of our bureaucrats have wanted the Government to enter.

On the contrary, the munitions business, when carried on for private gain and exploited by an international ring, is distinctly and dangerously anti-social.

FOR this reason, the manufacture of war makerials ought therefore to be wholly and solely a governmental function.

There is no private market for cannons and submarines. There should be no private trafficking with them.

In the interests of world peace and of our own security, let the United States Government take over THE ENTIRE BUSINESS of making war machinery and war supplies, and use it IN CONNECTION WITH OUR ARMY AND NAVY FOR THE SAFETY AND DEFENSE OF OUR OWN PEOPLE.

That certainly will be a much better national business for the Government to go into than peddling furniture and wrecking the airplane industry.
